Wind ruins house trailer

BUSHKILL — High winds caused heavy damage to a house trailer on Rt. 209, near Bushkill, Monday. The above photo by George Arnold shows what happened to the trailer.

At 11:20 a.m., Samuel W. Harer of Montgomery R.D. 1, was traveling north pulling a house trailer behind a tractor. He told State Police from Stroudsburg that a sudden gust of wind caused the trailer to swerve.

The trailer left its carriage, struck four guard rails, a tree and a utility pole before it landed on its roof in a field next to the highway.

The trailer was totally demolished by the freak accident. Police set damage at $4,000.

At 6 a.m., Monday, police said a car driven by Stanley Rober, 30, of Tannersville, skidded on a patch of ice on Rt. 611, near the Stroud Shopping Center, and the car flipped over.

Rober told police that he was attempting to pass another vehicle as both cars were traveling north. Police estimated damage to Rober's car at $300.

Vatican's arch-conservative quits; Yugoslav successor

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Ultraconservative Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani has resigned as the highest authority on faith and morals in the government of the Roman Catholic Church, the Vatican announced Monday.

Pope Paul VI accepted the resignation, calling it a "most noble gesture," and appointed a prelate from Communist Yugoslavia, Franjo Cardinal Saper, as Cardinal Ottaviani's successor.

More than any other person in the Vatican in years, the development symbolized the evolution of the half-billion-member Church in this decade from a closed, conservative institution to one struggling with a new role in the space age.

Cardinal Ottaviani, 77, was regarded by progressive clerics as a major obstacle to Church modernization. As prefect of the Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, he wielded immense behind-the-scenes power and described himself as a "policeman" guarding Church tradition.

Dramatic move
The appointment of Cardinal Saper, 63, archbishop of Zagreb, is the most dramatic move so far in Pope Paul's efforts to internationalize the Italian-dominated Roman Curia, the central Church administration.

Informed Vatican sources said Cardinal Ottaviani leaves "in pied" (on his feet)—meaning the resignation was forced neither by health reasons nor by direct intervention of the Pope. They said that although he has been partially blind for more than a decade, he is in good health. They also said his resignation has been sitting on Pope Paul's desk for some time, the pontiff having turned it down until now.

Last February, the pontiff praised Cardinal Ottaviani in a letter as "my friend and teacher" and expressed the hope he would remain at his post for many years to come. He had warm praise again for the cardinal in his letter accepting the resignation, printed Monday by the Vatican paper L'Osservatore Romano.

Officials close to Cardinal Ottaviani let out the word that he had resigned to "set an example" for older prelates in high Curia positions. Pope Paul asked Curia cardinals more than a year ago to put their jobs at his disposal. Vatican informants, however, reported the conviction in high Church circles that the cardinal felt himself increasingly isolated by the movement for liberalization that began with the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council.

Since 1935 he had been a high official of the congregation, which grew out of the 16th century Inquisition. Since 1953 he had run it as basically the sole administrative arbiter of doctrinal questions from dioceses around the world.

At the Vatican Council, however, he often found himself angered by progressive bishops who repeatedly denounced his congregation's supersecrecy. After the council, Pope Paul changed the congregation's name from the "Holy Office," which for centuries had evoked the image of heretic-hunting. He abolished its index of forbidden books and ordered fair trials for religious defendants.

The Yugoslav prelate, who will take over the highest-ranking Vatican job ever given to a Cardinal from a Communist country, is known as a modest man who shies away from publicity. Regarded highly by progressives and conservatives, he drew the highest number of votes when the synod chose its commission. He will have to leave Zagreb for the Vatican post.

Cong continues terror; guerrillas evade guards

SAIGON (AP) — Striking 21 miles from Saigon, 700 Viet Cong guerrillas overran a pay-in capital where a U.S. civilian development team is operating, hoisted their Communist flag and held the town in terror for three hours Monday before vanishing in the bush near Cambodia's border.

A heavy initial mortar bombardment, aimed chiefly at the U.S. civilian military compound, killed three civilian Americans and wounded 15 others, both civilian and military. Fourteen South Vietnamese were killed and 26 wounded in addition to moderate casualties suffered by a government military force.

After the mortar attack, the guerrillas stormed through the streets of Kheim Cuong, 10 miles east of Cambodia, and flew their flag from a central building. It was shot down in a sharp firefight.

The attack followed by two days the overrunning of the village of Tan Uyen, six miles from the big U.S.-South Vietnamese base at Bien Hoa and 23 miles north of Saigon.

In that attack a mixed force of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese regulars blew up a new market place and burned down 11 homes. Fourteen South Vietnamese were killed and 46 were wounded in what U.S. officials said was a Communist drive for a propaganda victory by hoisting the Viet Cong flag on a district headquarters building. The Reds failed, however.

A South Vietnamese government spokesman said the attack on Kheim Cuong, capital of Hau Nghia Province northwest of Saigon, began shortly before 3 a.m. A barrage of several hundred rounds of mortars fell first and was followed by an assault by a main force and local guerrilla Viet Cong.

Following the mortar attack, the spokesman said, the Viet Cong "were in the streets." Fighting raged through the town of more than 2,000 persons, before the enemy force moved out just before daybreak. The Viet Cong slipped past three battalions of government troops sent to the relief of the provincial capital and there were no reports of further contact during the day.

Left behind in the town were the bodies of 19 Viet Cong. Five guerrillas were captured, two of them wounded.

U.S. officials said the three Americans killed were workers in the Agency of Civil Operations and Revolutionary Development Support—calledCORDS.

Tragedy averted

A total of 325 elderly persons were evacuated from the Normandy Retirement Home in Philadelphia Monday after fire broke out and raged out of control for several hours. Here the seventh floor of the building collapsed after the wind changed directions.

Train crash in Boston tunnel injures 71, none seriously

BOSTON (AP)—The number of injured rose to 71 Monday after one rapid transit train jammed with Boston-bound commuters smashed into the rear of another crowded train in a tunnel passing under Boston Harbor.

Rescue officials said none of those taken to hospitals was seriously hurt. The crash occurred in bitter cold temperatures with almost a foot of snow on the ground.

About 1,200 passengers, many of them standing, were aboard the two four-car trains when the collision occurred at the height of the morning rush hour.

Many were knocked to the floor by the impact and others toppled on top.

The crash site was at the east end of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority tunnel connecting downtown with East Boston.

U.S. heart patient sinks; internal bleeding stops

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Mike Kasperak's condition became critical Monday—the second day after his failing heart was replaced by another—but doctors managed to halt internal bleeding that threatened his life.

They said his new heart appeared to be functioning "very well."

Doctors at Palo Alto-Stanford Medical Center said Kasperak was conscious. The bleeding from stomach and intestines two days after the operation stemmed from liver disease, they said.

They said the many complications suffered by the 54-year-old steelworker were "severe but soluble." He had been reported in satisfactory condition earlier in the day despite expected difficulty in breathing.

Kasperak's condition became critical when the bleeding began. Fresh blood transfusions and other measures apparently stopped the bleeding, attending physicians said in a mid-afternoon bulletin.

Dr. Norman E. Shumway and a team of Stanford Medical School performed the transplantation Saturday night. They gave Kasperak the heart of a 43-year-old housewife.

The housewife, Mrs. Virginia White, had died about 24 hours after suffering a massive brain hemorrhage, a stroke.

In their bulletin, the physicians said Kasperak's prothrombin time, another index of blood clotting ability, was low, only 23 per cent.

They said his liver function was poor because of the heart condition which led to the heart transplant. Kasperak's heart had become fibrous and had grown to three times normal size, doctors said, in its failing attempt to pump blood.

Kasperak received fresh blood transfusions in a desperate attempt to save his life after the internal bleeding began.

Earlier, doctors said Kasperak had catnapped through the night and was communicating to nurses who read his lip movements. He was unable to talk because a tube had been inserted in his throat to help him breathe.

Dr. Donald C. Harrison, chief of the Stanford School of Medicine's division of cardiology, said the respiratory difficulty was expected because Kasperak also had a chronic lung disease.

The problem was not identified, but Harrison said Kasperak was a steelworker for 30 years and a heavy smoker.

Kasperak was the first adult in America to receive a heart transplant. It was the fourth such operation on man in history.

Shumway and others at Stanford—as well as at other medical schools—have worked out the operative technique on dogs over the past eight years.

Dr. Christian Barnard and his surgical team performed the first human heart transplant at Groote Schuur Hospital in Cape Town, South Africa, Dec. 3. The recipient lived 18 days and died of pneumonia.

On Dec. 6, Dr. Adrian Wiktorowicz and others at Maimonides Medical Center, Brooklyn, N.Y., transferred one newly dead infant's heart to another, but the baby lived only 4½ hours.

Barnard performed his second heart transplant operation last Tuesday. The patient, Dr. Philip Blalberg, 58, is reported doing well. He received the heart of a 24-year-old man who died of a stroke.

Red Chinese talks resume

WARSAW, Poland (AP)

— Envoys of the United States and Communist China met Monday for the first time in seven months and discussed for more than two hours the "positions and intentions" of their governments.

The 13th session of the Warsaw ambassadorial talks was marked by frank and serious discussions on a number of problems which face the United States and the Chinese People's Republic, U.S. Ambassador John A. Gronouski told newsmen after the meeting.

The talks are the only direct official contact between the two powers and details never are divulged.

Gronouski, former U.S. postmaster general, said: "I hold these talks to be invaluable because they provide a private forum for both sides to state and clarify their positions and intentions."

Reduced tension
"We continue to hope that these meetings can serve to reduce tensions between our two countries and ultimately throughout East Asia," he added.

Gronouski said the next meeting will be held on May 26. Gronouski's discussion partner at this session was not his Chinese counterpart but instead the Chinese Embassy charge d'affaires, Chen Tung.

Speaking through an interpreter Chen told newsmen: "Owing to administrative reasons our ambassador (Wang Kuo-Chuan) has not been able to return to his post in time for this meeting. As a provisional measure my government has delegated me to attend."

Wang left Warsaw in midsummer for Peking and has not returned.

Schultze quits budget post

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — President Johnson announced Monday night the resignation of Budget Director Charles L. Schultze — his chief of staff in developing the financial program of the government which runs to well over $100 billion a year.

To replace Schultze, Johnson tapped Assistant Director Charles J. Zwick.

Snow, sleet hit southwest

47 states in deep freeze

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Numbing cold hung on through the northeastern section of the nation Monday while heavy snow and sleet closed many highways and caused traffic pileups in areas of the West.

(See complete weather pattern on page 8 and local weather story on page 9.)

The severe weather sent temperatures below the freezing level early Monday in 47 of the 48 contiguous states. Only Florida, where low readings were in the upper 30s in the northern section, escaped the freeze.

Numerous deaths were attributed to the weather.

In the Southwest, snow and freezing rain spread northward from Texas to the Central Plains.

Travel warnings were in effect from southeastern New Mexico eastward to Louisiana and northward to Oklahoma as the result of a mixture of freezing rain, drizzle and sleet that glazed streets and highways.

A number of major highways in southern New Mexico were made impassable by heavy snow with depths up to 6 inches atop 5 inches already on the ground.

Included were Interstate 10 between Las Cruces, N.M., and El Paso, Tex.; U.S. 54 from Alamogordo, N.M., to El Paso, and U.S. 62-180 between Carlsbad, N.M., and El Paso.

In central New Mexico, roads were snowpacked and slick east of the Rio Grande Valley, including U.S. 65 east of Albuquerque.

The new snow came as ranchers were about finished with clearing roads blocked by storms that isolated hundreds of head of cattle last month.

Freezing rain gave Texas an icy cover to the Gulf of Mexico. Schools and some freeways were closed as a result of the storm that crippled traffic and caused hundreds of accidents.

Texas cold

The temperature dropped to 28 degrees in normally warm Corpus Christi early Monday. Rain or drizzle came from as far south as Beaumont, Port Arthur, Houston, Victoria and San Antonio. In Dallas, hundreds of householders reported broken water pipes after the temperature dropped to 13 degrees, a record for the date.

The large high pressure system responsible for the cold weather in the eastern two thirds of the nation the last few days was moving eastward Monday.

But the biting cold continued in the Northeast and East where up to 10 inches of fresh snow fell Sunday.

Temperature extremes Monday afternoon ranged from -20 near Massena, N.Y., to 77 at Key West, Fla.

Bangor fails to decide on school

BANGOR — Bangor Area School Board, with three directors absent, was unable to reach a decision on the construction of a proposed new junior high school during a special meeting held Monday night.

As a result, another special meeting was scheduled for Wednesday at 7 p.m. The meeting place will be announced.

A study of three proposed bond issues to finance construction of the building covering all alternatives showed the total necessary is $3,820,000. A proposal to build a school and a swimming pool and no other alternatives would cost $3,760,000, and the building alone, $3,460,000.

Tax millage on estimates ran from 5.15 to 5.85 mills on 30-year bonds and 4.88 to 5.52 on 35-year issue bonds.

State aid estimates run from $54,405 to $57,625 toward yearly rentals. The estimated cost of funding the issues range from $228,800 to $262,850.

Adam Powell breaks exile

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell broke his long self exile Monday and said he would walk the streets of Watts Monday night.

Powell, interviewed in Miami during the first leg of his air trip to Los Angeles from his island retreat on Bimini, said he would tour the on-line racial battleground during a speaking tour in California.

GI's can't comprehend ways of war's refugees

XUAN QUE, Vietnam (AP) — Neither the 1st Air Cavalry soldiers nor the band of refugees were in a good mood when the old woman began to stumble and stagger on the hike down the trail toward the district headquarters.

It quickly became obvious that she wouldn't make it under her own power. The company commander called a halt to regroup the refugees and to let the 80 oldsters and children rest.

An American medic looked at the woman and said she would have to be carried. The Vietnamese interpreter was instructed: Tell the refugees the Americans will rig a litter and then the strongest refugees will have to carry the woman the final three miles.

A rapid exchange of Vietnamese followed. The few young men and several husky women shook their heads. They would not help.

"What a people! They won't even take care of their own," a corporal said with disgust. A sergeant turned to the interpreter again. Another exchange in Vietnamese.

"They say no," the interpreter said. "They no carry old woman."

The sergeant shrugged and said: "Well, we aren't going to do it either. She either makes it or we leave her."

Despite the interpreter, neither the GIs nor the refugees really understood each other. Both were acting out of convictions drawn from their cultural backgrounds. To both the issue was clearcut.

To the Americans the woman's friends and fellow villagers had a moral obligation to help their own.

To the Vietnamese, aiding the woman meant accepting responsibility for her welfare for the rest of her life.

And so she was left, panting and whimpering along the trail. Two Americans gave her water and some food, voiced the hope she would be found or could make it in after a rest, and then pushed on.

The incident further soured the company of air cavalrymen shepherding the refugees.

"Getting mixed up with these refugees is a real morale problem for my people; the troops don't like it a bit," said Lt. Col. Bob Gregory of Tulsa, Okla., the battalion commander.

The refugees had volunteered for resettlement out of the Que Son Valley where the air cavalry and the 2nd North Vietnamese Division were squaring off. The GIs burned the refugees' homes and destroyed all the food they could not carry—to deny them to the enemy. The homes of those who elected to stay were not touched. "These guys sometimes act pretty callous when they burn the hatches, but for most of them it's a coverup," a sergeant said. "When those people begin weeping and wailing, it gets to everyone."

The wailing in the column was like a chain reaction. After minutes of silence some child or woman would begin to moan. The sound was picked up by others and quickly spread through the column. Then it would die out. A mile after the old woman was left, the Americans and refugees joined in laughter and drew together momentarily.

The cause was a rain-swollen stream. One of the first GIs across carried one end of a rope which was stretched across the swift stream.

Then the Americans waded in and formed a human chain to help the refugees. Across the stream they passed old women, children, babies, pigs, chickens and bundles of belongings. The babies and smaller children didn't even get their feet wet.

The Vietnamese began laughing. The Americans began laughing.

On the far bank, children played in the water and mud until mothers chased them to dry ground. Everyone laughed at that.

Then a new crisis arose. One of the refugee women began having labor pains. The Americans cut bamboo, shed their shirts and rigged a litter. They would carry her to open ground and call for a helicopter. But the pains came more rapidly. The helicopter landed on the creek bank despite the hazards of nearby trees, and the woman was picked up. She had the baby on the way to the district town.

Somehow the mood of the GIs had turned possessive toward their charges. One trooper called out to the departing chopper, "Hey lady, call him Cav the First."

Then the column pushed forward again. More refugees were collected. More homes were burned. One house exploded as the fire reached a Viet Cong ammunition cache. Another was found to have a tunnel leading into two large rooms with more tunnels linked to camouflaged fighting holes along a hill. The tunnels and rooms were blown up.

A small boy began crying. Again the wailing spread through the column. Several GIs swore and one called for the refugees to shut up. They finally did after the wave of emotion passed.

Con-Con will vote on school question

HARRISBURG (AP) — A Philadelphia delegate appealed Monday a decision that would bar Pennsylvania's Constitutional Convention from considering a proposal to provide state aid for nonpublic schools.

The delegate, German Quiles, asked for a floor vote on Convention President Raymond J. Broderick's ruling that the proposal goes beyond the convention's limited jurisdiction to revise only specific articles of the Constitution.

The vote was delayed until Wednesday, however, to give delegates an opportunity to study both Quiles' proposal and the legal opinion Broderick used to support his decision to reject it.

Under convention rules, Braderick's ruling could be upset by a majority vote and the proposal would be referred to committee for further study and possible floor action at a later date.

School aid Quiles' proposal, submitted last Thursday, would authorize the legislature to levy taxes and appropriate funds for the support of non-public schools.

Delegate Peter T. Dumbauld of Somerset County asked for a delay "of at least one day" on a vote on two proposals affecting state aid for higher education Broderick had rejected last week.

In a related development, Broderick rejected five more proposals Monday, bringing to 15 the total he has refused to accept since the convention opened.

Although last Friday was officially the final day delegates could introduce proposals from the floor, Broderick announced Monday that an additional 85 proposals that did not clear the Legislative Reference Bureau before the deadline could be submitted this week.

In all, 11 proposals were introduced Monday. That brings to 175 the total now under consideration by various committees.

One proposal offered Monday would require that all expenditures of tax funds, including legislative contingency expense funds, by subject to audit by the Auditor General's Office.

The chief sponsor of the proposals was delegate Robert P. Fohl of Pittsburgh.

An obvious target of the proposal would be $250,000 in legislative contingency funds that now are exempt from audit under a 1966 ruling of the Attorney General.

Moreover, the convention's $1.56 million budget and the Convention Preparatory Committee's $199,000 budget are not subject to audit.

Other proposals submitted Monday would:

- Require all justices of the peace and aldermen to complete a training course.
- Give local government units exclusive control over salaries, hours and working conditions for their employees.
- Eliminate the requirement that there be minority representation on county boards of commissioners.
- Remove the local real estate tax exemption on property owned by charitable institutions if the property is used for profit-making activities.
- Establish a system of family courts with exclusive jurisdiction in marriage, divorce, adoption and juvenile cases.

Firemen hampered by cold

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Two fires erupted within less than six hours in this Mohawk Valley city Monday amidst sub-zero temperatures and gusting winds.

Six firefighters were injured, none seriously.

An early morning blaze, driven by high winds, swept through three downtown buildings, forcing about 80 guests to evacuate the nearby Schenectady Hotel.

Firemen fought the blaze for more than four hours but two buildings were destroyed and a third heavily damaged. Efforts to save the structures were thwarted by rapidly forming ice in seven-below-zero cold.

None of the fleeing hotel guests were reported injured, although four firemen suffered minor injuries.

Antimissile Sprint fails defense test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The superfast, short-range interceptor designed as a key component in the nation's antiballistic missile defense has failed a number of times in test launches, the Pentagon acknowledged Monday.

But a defense statement depicted the problems affecting the conical, mile-per-second Sprint missile as "those normally expected in any missile research and development program."

The Pentagon said the difficulties—not detailed in any way for security reasons—would not slow deployment of antimissile batteries around the country to protect the nation against a light missile attack.

The $5-billion system is scheduled to be combat-ready in five or six years.

Sentinel A missile specialist in the program, called Sentinel, told a reporter technical problems have been plaguing Sprint in development work at the White Sands, N.M., range.

This engineer said the difficulties are in the missile itself, rather than the system.

Surveyor races moonward

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 7 sped toward the moon Monday on a course so accurate scientists said they might not have to make a final steering maneuver.

A decision was expected within several hours.

Flight controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory made a major course change Sunday, aiming the instrument-loaded spacecraft closer to the rugged crater Tycho, near the south-central edge of the lunar disk.

Surveyor 7 is due to land Tuesday night with a television camera; a small scoop to dig trenches as deep as 18 inches; a device to analyze soil with radiation, and magnets to detect iron.

The mission of the final unmanned U.S. lunar lander is purely scientific—designed to tell if there is any significant difference between the highlands around Tycho and the quatorial plains chosen for astronaut landings planned to start as early as next year.

Four successful earlier Surveyors have sent back thousands of photographs showing that four primary sites are safe for manned expeditions.

GI's can't comprehend ways of war's refugees

XUAN QUE, Vietnam (AP) — Neither the 1st Air Cavalry soldiers nor the band of refugees were in a good mood when the old woman began to stumble and stagger on the hike down the trail toward the district headquarters.

It quickly became obvious that she wouldn't make it under her own power. The company commander called a halt to regroup the refugees and to let the 80 oldsters and children rest.

An American medic looked at the woman and said she would have to be carried. The Vietnamese interpreter was instructed: Tell the refugees the Americans will rig a litter and then the strongest refugees will have to carry the woman the final three miles.

A rapid exchange of Vietnamese followed. The few young men and several husky women shook their heads. They would not help.

"What a people! They won't even take care of their own," a corporal said with disgust.

A sergeant turned to the interpreter again. Another exchange in Vietnamese.

"They say no," the interpreter said. "They no carry old woman."

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Two fires erupted within less than six hours in this Mohawk Valley city Monday amidst sub-zero temperatures and gusting winds.

None of the fleeing hotel guests were reported injured, although four firemen suffered minor injuries.

Fire officials said the flames spread from a building housing Bozzie's Grill and a bowling alley. The stiff north wind, gusting up to 20 miles per hour, spread the blaze south to another three-story structure and a two-story building.

Shortly after the blaze was under control, firemen were called to the city's historic Stockade section where flames gutted the top floor of an apartment building housing a member of Gov. Rockefeller's executive department and the women's editor of the Schenectady Union-Star.

Four persons in the building fled to safety. Two firemen were injured.

Two apartments on the top floor of the brick and frame structure were occupied by Miss Virginia A. Cairns, a member of the Women's Unit of the governor's staff, and Miss Kate Reinert, women's editor of the city's afternoon paper. Neither was at home at the time of the fire.

The two injured firemen were identified as Francis Flynn, 42, and Richard Macgathian, 48. Both were reported in satisfactory condition at Ellis Hospital.

There was no immediate estimate of damage for either fire.

Big business in snow

Snowmobiles 'drifting' to records

BY BOB CLARK

BUCK HILL FALLS — Snowmobile riding and racing is no longer a fad. Today it is big business for the consumer and producer.

Who has watched the snows come and go for more than a half century at The Inn at Buck Hill Falls, knows this better than most people.

Drennan is winter sports manager at Buck Hill and has grown with the white stuff from the days of the dog teams to the present, modern way of snowmobiling around the spacious grounds of the Pocono Mountains vacationland for young, old and in-between.

Drennan is preparing Buck Hill's famous two-mile obstacle course for the Inn's Snowmobile Championships, scheduled Saturday and Sunday. The layout that will test 130 to 150 jockeys of snowmobiles isn't an easy jaunt for a novice, let alone the so-called pro of skirting-the-snow ranks.

"Why don't you take a spin around," Garry asked the other day when the temperature was hovering around the zero mark. "Not me," was the answer. But Drennan picked up the words and commented, "I'll send Jerry Chet, the best chauffeur snowmobiles ever had with you."

It wasn't perfect when the rider climbed behind Obert, who likes to stand to steer his Colt. First of all you have to be dressed to meet the elements which were magnified by a stiff wind that made a beet face out of white skin.

Thrilling ride
But some heroes are made, not born, and Obert had a rider for the supposedly three-minute trek. It was thrilling to say the least and Obert was most accommodating, stopping periodically to show the landscape and the problems that will face the entrants in the January 13-14 classic.

Obert drives like Ken Maynard rides a horse. Side saddle, one would call it. The rider goes with him. And as long as there are handles to grip, you can stay with him all the way.

Snowmobiling is a great outdoor sport whether you have the perfect chauffeur like Obert who comes from Greentown, or

Harry Drennan

a novice like Sgt. Preston of the dog-sledding Royal Mounties. With Buck Hill's beautiful terrain to blend with the ride, one truly feels free in the wild, white yonder.

Drennan beamed when the dark-red face came into his headquarters at the end of Obert's run. How did you like it?" he asked.

It was tough to talk and hard to see through a stiff mouth and teary eyes. But a word here and there could be translated into "What a wildcat way to spend a delightful day and be so much alive."

Approving feeling

Drennan said, "I thought approval would be forthcoming. Now you know what the entrants in this weekend's Buck Hill Snowmobile Championships will feel when they cross the finish line. In fact, the award is not in a trophy, but in making the run in what is called over the wild, white yonder."

Harry listened as a sting of sentences improved on his remarks:

"You have to ride a snowmobile to feel how close you are to winter's father nature."

"It is man's and woman's and child's opportunity to grasp the finest healthy outlook on life. Just being there is not enough. One must travel around the countryside in a snowmobile and breathe in the attributes of the wonderful world around you."

"In short, a whole new outlook on recreation has been created through a machine that gets you there as slow or as fast as you desire. And days are added to your lives, too."

That's what a simple ride on a snowmobile meant to a novice who now sees a new phase of winter activity opening up for young, old and in-between, in the Pocono Mountains.

Big business in snow

Snowmobiles 'drifting' to records

BY BOB CLARK

BUCK HILL FALLS — Snowmobile riding and racing is no longer a fad. Today it is big business for the consumer and producer.

who has watched the snows come and go for more than a half century at The Inn at Buck Hill Falls, knows this better than most people.

Drennan is winter sports manager at Buck Hill and has grown with the white stuff from the days of the dog teams to the present, modern way of snow-mobiling around the spacious grounds of the Pocono Mountains vacationland for young, old and in-between.

Drennan is preparing Buck Hill's famous two-mile obstacle course for the Inn's Snowmobile Championships, scheduled Saturday and Sunday. The layout that will test 130 to 150 jockeys of snowmobiles isn't an easy jaunt for a novice, let alone the so-called pro of skirting-the-snow ranks.

"Why don't you take a spin around," Garry asked the other day when the temperature was hovering around the zero mark.

"Not me," was the answer. But Drennan picked up the words and commented, "I'll send Jerry Chet, the best chauffeur snowmobiles ever had with you."

It wasn't perfect when the rider climbed behind Obert, who likes to stand to steer his Colt. First of all you have to be dressed to meet the elements which were magnified by a stiff wind that made a beet face out of white skin.

Thrilling ride

But some heroes are made, not born, and Obert had a rider for the supposedly three-minute trek. It was thrilling to say the least and Obert was most accommodating, stopping periodically to show the landscape and the problems that will face the entrants in the January 13-14 classic.

Obert drives like Ken Maynard rides a horse. Side saddle, one would call it. The rider goes with him. And as long as there are handles to grip, you can stay with him all the way.

Snowmobiling is a great outdoor sport whether you have the perfect chauffeur like Obert who comes from Greentown, or

Harry Drennan

a novice like Sgt. Preston of the dog-sledding Royal Mounties. With Buck Hill's beautiful terrain to blend with the ride, one truly feels free in the wild, white yonder.

Drennan beamed when the dark-red face came into his headquarters at the end of Obert's run. How did you like it?" he asked.

It was tough to talk and hard to see through a stiff mouth and teary eyes. But a word here and there could be translated into "What a wildcat way to spend a delightful day and be so much alive."

Approving feeling

Drennan said, "I thought approval would be forthcoming. Now you know what the entrants in this weekend's Buck Hill Snowmobile Championships will feel when they cross the finish line. In fact, the award is not in a trophy, but in making the run in what is called over the wild, white yonder."

Harry listened as a sting of sentences improved on his remarks:

"You have to ride a snowmobile to feel how close you are to winter's father nature."

"It is man's and woman's and child's opportunity to grasp the finest healthy outlook on life. Just being there is not enough. One must travel around the countryside in a snowmobile and breathe in the attributes of the wonderful world around you."

In short, a whole new outlook on recreation has been created through a machine that gets you there as slow or as fast as you desire. And days are added to your lives, too."

That's what a simple ride on a snowmobile meant to a novice who now sees a new phase of winter activity opening up for young, old and in-between, in the Pocono Mountains.

Let signs shield ugly junkyards

Our state is going to put up the money to have a shield of shrubbery and fencing placed between Rt. 80 and the Katz junkyard. Probably we should applaud.

No doubt the view from the elevated highway as it passes through Stroudsburg would be improved by hiding the piles of old metal. And certainly the government should supply any funds for the project. After all, it was not the fault of the junkyard that the highway came its way. The junkyard was there first and, incidentally, pretty much hidden from all but passing airplanes.

As all travelers must notice, however, the rules that permit billboards along interstate highways within a certain number of yards of past or present intersecting roads, permit an unhealthy number of signs in this same stretch of Rt. 80 within the borough.

Which is worse, signs or junk? Pressed for a decision, we would say that normally the junk is more irritating to those who let their eyes stray off the road and want to see only nature's beauty. Thus a suggestion to save taxpayer money:

Why not encourage the outdoor advertising companies to erect a beautiful string of signs between the junkyard and Rt. 80. This would be the "fence" that the state is about to pay some private contractor to build.

After this is done the state could get its own Forests and Waters Department to plant a few hundred of the evergreen seedlings it has available by the thousands. In a few decades the trees would be high enough to eclipse both the signs and the junkyard.

By that time, of course, Rt. 80 would probably be obsolete and a broader highway could be built next to another junkyard so the whole process of beautification could be repeated. This is known as planning.

Veterans' group frets over inconsistent U.S.

An editorial comment from the state VFW News is submitted by a member of the United Veterans Organization of Monroe County. He suggests that it represents the sentiments of the local UVO and would like to see it published. Herewith:

"My God, how can it be,

"That one boy lies rotting from malnutrition and torture in a jungle prison camp in North Vietnam — and another boy spits and tramples on the flag of this country on the steps of a university of learning.

"That one boy lies sightless in a U.S. Naval Hospital from Communist-inflicted face wounds — and another boy uses a Communist flag to drape himself in defiance of the laws of this country.

"That one man of medicine begins his thirtieth straight hour standing over an operating table in pursuit of life for men serving this country — and another man of medicine implores crowds of young men to refuse to serve their country.

"That one Negro holds the face of his dead white comrade in his arms and cries pitifully in a dirty mud hole in Vietnam — and another Negro screams with hate against his white brother on the streets of countless American cities.

"That one boy lies in a coffin beneath the ground because he believed in duty to country — and another boy lies on a dingy cot giving blood to the enemies of his country.

"That one man of God shields a wounded boy from an enemy bayonet with his body and dies — and another man of God uses his cloth as a shield to preach hate, dissension and lawlessness.

"My God, how can it be?

— Joseph R. Holmes

Light side

With Gene Brown

Business Week magazine has some hints on how much liquor one needs for parties at home. Consumption ranges from two to eight drinks per person with very few "twos." You'll need about a quart for every four guests, on the basis of figuring five drinks per guest. The usual holiday party buying is 25 per cent bourbon, 25 per cent Scotch, 25 per cent gin, 10 per cent rum and 10 per cent vodka with 5 per cent miscellaneous. In the South boost the bourbon 10 per cent; in the Northeast (that's us) boost the Scotch 10 per cent. If you add up to more than a 100 per cent variety, that's the way holiday parties go.

Department of Cyrokinetics:

While ice for sprains, muscle aches, etc., has been recommended by local physicians for years, ice treatment is being recommended even more today according to the Wall Street Journal. Ice stops pain in many cases much quicker than heat. You can freeze water in an orange juice can and roll it on your back. Use a cardboard coffee cup with a handle as a rub down. The handle gives you a comfortable hold. Doctors also suggest that a five to ten minute rub with an ice cube helps skin itching. However if brain surgery is involved do not consult this column, try your physician.

U. S. wars unpopular in varying degrees

Peace parties certain as death and taxes

By Richard L. Worsnop
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — "The friends of peace will become so strong," the enemy general predicted, "that the next administration will go in on that basis." Thus, it was necessary only "to resist manfully" until voters in the United States elected a new President.

The foregoing appraisal of American peace sentiment was made, not by Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap of North Vietnam, but by Gen. Robert E. Lee in a letter to his wife in 1863. In the American Civil War as in the Vietnam war, opposition to an unpopular conflict found expression in a "peace" movement.

The current peace movement consists of old-line pacifist organizations, political groups formed to oppose the Vietnam War, and dissident Democrats who oppose President Johnson as well as the war. Their over-all strength, difficult to calculate, is diminished by lack of common leadership and goals. But the presidential candidacy of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy may conceivably provide a rallying point.

McCarthy announced on Nov. 30 that he would enter four presidential primaries this year to oppose President Johnson's war policies. The senator has since indicated that he might enter as many as seven additional primaries. McCarthy says that he is "not for peace at any price but for an honorable, rational, and political solution to this war."

New England against War of 1812

American peace movements date back to colonial times, and they have flourished in periods of peace as well as of war. The first major peace movement after the War of Independence occurred during the War of 1812, one of the least popular conflicts in American history. Governors in New England refused to call out the militia, and bankers in that region loaned more money to the enemy than to their own government. A convention held in Northampton, Mass., in July 1812 declared the war to be "neither just, necessary, nor expedient," and called on President Madison to sue for peace.

Peace or defeatist movements were active in both the Union and the Confederacy during the Civil War. In the North, the Peace Democrats or Copperheads plotted against what they considered a war for abolition and for the fattening of "Eastern capitalists" and clamored for an immediate truce. Clandestine Copperhead propaganda, aimed at undermining the morale of soldiers and encouraging desertion, was remarkably successful.

The antiwar movement in the South was compounded of war weariness, resentment against regimentation by the Jefferson Davis regime, and a conviction on the part of poorer southerners "that the struggle after all was 'a rich man's war and a poor man's fight.'" Two Confederate underground groups, with total estimated membership of 100,000, killed or drove away military recruiters, encouraged desertion, terrorized the countryside, gave information to the enemy, and weakened morale generally.

The peace issue or related issues have been raised in several presidential elections. William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic nominee in 1900, campaigned against imperialism — acquisition of former Spanish colonies in the Spanish-American War of 1898. One reason why Woodrow Wilson was re-elected in 1916 was that "He kept us out of war." Dwight D. Eisenhower's pledge of Oct. 24, 1952 — "I shall go to Korea" — contributed to his landslide victory in the presidential election less than two weeks later.

Perhaps the greatest problem now facing peace organizations is that they often are suspected of being Communist-inspired. The problem dates back to 1932, when the American League Against War and Fascism was formed. It and a number of other peace groups active in the 1930s were Communist fronts.

Role of communists
Fear of Communist infiltration underlies the current dispute within the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy (SANE), one of the leading peace groups active today. Robert J. Schwartz, a member of the SANE board of directors, has no objection to entering into an alliance with Communists. "SANE has no more right to police the peace movement than the U.S. government has to police the world," Schwartz believes. But other leaders of the organization feel that acceptance of Communist support would result in a drastic loss of popular support.

Sen. McCarthy, in the opinion of many political analysts, must not become too closely identified with the more radical antiwar groups lest he alienate the great bloc of voters who oppose both the war and the violent demonstrations mounted against it. At the same time, he must fashion a program for peace that is sufficiently different from that of President Johnson to offer the voters a clear choice on Vietnam policy.

Richard Spong

Where are our cops?

WASHINGTON — An American woman is raped every 12 minutes. A house in the United States is burglarized every 27 seconds. Someone is robbed every 4½ minutes in this nation. The nationwide police shortage stands at a staggering 50,000.

These random facts are based in part on the 1967 report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The FBI on Dec. 11 reported a 60 per cent rise in bank robberies over the first nine months of 1967. All crimes were up by 16 per cent over the like 1966 period. All robberies were up by 27 per cent. Murders were 16 per cent higher, aggravated assault was up 9 per cent, and rape went up 7 per cent.

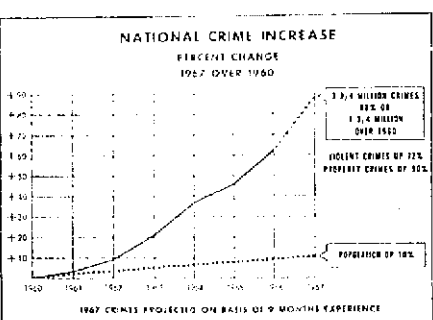

Big cities registered an overall 15 per cent crime rise. The suburbs suffered a 17 per cent increase, and rural areas are the surprising 12 per cent. Regionally, the crime trend showed increases of 14 per cent in Southern states; 15 per cent in Western states; 17 per cent in the North-Central area; and 18 per cent in the Northeast.

Some measure of the rise in crime comes from other random data. At least $2,245,988 has been stolen in 45 major robberies at Kennedy International Airport since Dec. 15, 1966. The July riots in Detroit produced these grim totals: 43 dead, 5,000 homeless, hundreds injured, nearly 5,000 prosecuted arrests. Buclid Harrisburg, Pa., according to its acting mayor, is "in a state of distress because of crime in the streets."

President Johnson on Dec. 11 said the FBI crime report illustrates "some consequences of delaying new federal support for our police departments and other agencies of criminal justice." He urged passage of the "most comprehensive anti-crime legislation in the nation's history." The Safe Streets and Crime Control Act. The measure was stalled in the Senate when Congress adjourned.

In signing the District of Columbia crime bill on Dec. 27, the President said: "The will to solve this (crime) problem must engage us all. Public order is the structure on which any society grows and prospers."

Supreme Court decisions in recent years restricting police powers have aroused much controversy. The Court now has before it several controversial "stop-and-frisk" cases. These involve powers of police to stop and search individuals for weapons when they do not have enough evidence for arrest.

A real problem is the lack of police manpower. The Reader's Digest reports after studying 36 police departments from Boston to Honolulu that "not one is up to authorized strength."

The Detroit police department is training a 1,000-man auxiliary force to assist firemen, guard public installations, and control crowds. Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago on Dec. 27 promised to put on the force 5,000 more policemen of necessary. New York City has a crack police force of 20,000, and Mayor John V. Lindsay is beefing up his patrol manpower hiring civilians for clerical and other duties.

The District of Columbia has recruited 186 new policemen from the armed forces. Many cities are offering pay incentives to college-trained policemen.

It's about time: a veteran policeman in Louisville, Ky., makes only a nickle more an hour than a general laborer. And Louisville's no special case.

Is he strong enough to provide a boost?

The Allen-Scott Report

Congress nips at Garrison

Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — District Attorney Jim Garrison's controversial New Orleans investigation of the Kennedy assassination is beginning to attract some belated congressional attention.

Staffs of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee are quietly checking into Garrison's wide-ranging inquiry to determine exactly what he is now up to.

At present, the attention of these congressional probers centers around Garrison's interest in and handling of (a) an official of the Ku Klux Klan and (b) a former congressional committee employee, who has given secret testimony before the New Orleans grand jury.

Significantly, both of these persons were reluctant witnesses in past congressional investigations not related to the Kennedy assassination.

The KKK official involved in Garrison's investigation is Jack M. Helm, the former exalted cyclops of the New Orleans unit of the United Klans of America. He is now head of an independent KKK group which he organized.

Summoned before the House Un-American Activities Committee in January 1968 during the committee's probe of the KKK, he was an uncooperative witness.

Helm, an operations manager of a New Orleans construction company, invoked the fifth, first, fourth and fourteenth amendments of the Constitution in refusing to answer any of the questions put to him by committee members.

NEW ORLEANS PROBE — Garrison began his probe of Helm on a tip from Jules Hacco Kimble, a self-proclaimed member of the KKK, who also claimed he once worked special assignments for the CIA. This the CIA denies and Garrison claims he will prove.

According to Garrison, Kimble reported that on the day after the death of David Ferrie, one of Garrison's suspects in the alleged Kennedy assassination plot, he drove Helm to Ferrie's apartment. Helm then came out with a satchel full of papers which, Kimble says, the KKK official then placed in a bank deposit box.

At this stage of his investigation Garrison refuses to say whether he has located the safe deposit box or recovered its mysterious contents.

However, aides of the district attorney are hinting that he has the key and that the box's contents will be revealed during next month's trial of Clay Shaw, the New Orleans businessman charged with being involved in a Kennedy assassination conspiracy.

Garrison is also probing an allegation of Kimble that Walter Sheridan, the former Justice Department trouble-shooter for then Attorney General Robert Kennedy, once counseled him not to talk to anyone and to go to Canada.

THE OTHER WITNESS — The former congressional employee whose furnishing of information to Garrison has interested congressional probers is Harold Weisberg, author of books on the Kennedy assassination attacking the Warren Commission, the FBI and CIA.

Paul Scott

According to records of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee and the House Un-American Activities Committee, Weisberg is the same man who testified in 1940 before a House committee that he bought forged documents in an attempt to link the Dies committee to the Silver Shirts.

At that time the Silver Shirts was a militant right-wing organization on the attorney general's subversive list. The documents were used in an abortive attempt by a Michigan congressman to smear the Dies committee, forerunner of the present House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The records of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee also show that Weisberg was dropped from the staff of the late Senator La Follette's Special Investigating Subcommittee for allegedly leaking subcommittee confidential information.

Choking on food

EVERY once in a while a distressing newspaper report tells the tragic tale of a person choking to death while eating a heavy meal. Although the explanation for such a tragedy is attempted, no really satisfactory reason thoroughly explains it. Fortunately, these accidents are rare.

As a physician whose specialty includes the removal of foreign bodies from the esophagus and the lung, I have been aware of the possibility that some episodes of choking were associated with a large intake of alcohol.

A number of patients have told me some variation of the following story: "I overate and overdrank and then almost choked to death because I vomited in my sleep."

This I believe is a true hazard. After an alcoholic binge food can suddenly be regurgitated or vomited from the stomach, inhaled into the windpipe and can cause death by choking.

This clinical suspicion seems to have been studied by Dr. W. J. Hogan at the Marquette School of Medicine in Milwaukee. He and his associates have uncovered a most interesting fact about the chronic alcoholic. They found that food passes through the esophagus, the tube leading from the mouth to the stomach, more slowly and that the swallowing reflex in the alcoholic is diminished.

This fine study about the movement of food may well be the beginning of the explanation for so many fatalities in the "overeating, overdrinking set." Whatever the technical explanations, the combination should be avoided for the greatest safety.

There are vast areas in the United States where thousands of people in need of psychological and psychiatric support have no specialist to guide them. In those communities where the family physician is available he becomes the first person to offer such help when mental or emotional illness is present.

The family doctor or general practitioner is the bulwark of support for emotionally disturbed patients. Sometimes he is so overwhelmed with work that he cannot offer the exact help that a psychiatrist would give if one was available.

Dr. Coleman welcomes letters from readers, and while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

SNIDEMES

It's pretty obvious why so many congressmen are in Vietnam right now. They're afraid to go home and face their constituents.

America, 1968, is where anyone who makes more than $5,000 per year needs a tax consultant.

Gov. Rockefeller ought to run against Bobby Kennedy for the Senate in 1970. And let the best money win.

The way new countries are springing up and borders are changing, maps get out of date faster than calendars.

Congress will return next week, unless we can think of some way to prevent it.

Let signs shield ugly junkyards

Our state is going to put up the money to have a shield of shrubbery and fencing placed between Rt. 80 and the Katz junkyard. Probably we should applaud.

No doubt the view from the elevated highway as it passes through Stroudsburg would be improved by hiding the piles of old metal. And certainly the government should supply any funds for the project. After all, it was not the fault of the junkyard that the highway came its way. The junkyard was there first and, incidentally, pretty much hidden from all but passing airplanes.

As all travelers must notice, however, the rules that permit billboards along interstate highways within a certain number of yards of past or present intersecting roads, permit an unhealthy number of signs in this same stretch of Rt. 80 within the borough.

Which is worse, signs or junk? Pressed for a decision, we would say that normally the junk is more irritating to those who let their eyes stray off the road and want to see only nature's beauty. Thus a suggestion to save taxpayer money:

Why not encourage the outdoor advertising companies to erect a beauteous string of signs between the junkyard and Rt. 80. This would be the "fence" that the state is about to pay some private contractor to build.

After this is done the state could get its own Forests and Waters Department to plant a few hundred of the evergreen seedlings it has available by the thousands. In a few decades the trees would be high enough to eclipse both the signs and the junkyard.

By that time, of course, Rt. 80 would probably be obsolete and a broader highway could be built next to another junkyard so the whole process of beautification could be repeated. This is known as planning.

Veterans' group frets over inconsistent U.S.

An editorial comment from the state VFW News is submitted by a member of the United Veteran Organization of Monroe County. He suggests that it represents the entitlements of the local UVO and would like to see it published. Herewith:

"My God, how can it be,

"That one boy lies rotting from malnutrition and torture in a jungle prison camp in North Vietnam — and another boy spits and tramples on the flag of this country on the steps of a university of learning.

"That one boy lies sightless in a U.S. Naval Hospital from Communist-inflicted face wounds — and another boy uses a Communist flag to drape himself in defiance of the laws of this country

"That one man of medicine begins his thirtieth straight hour standing over an operating table in pursuit of life for men serving this country — and another man of medicine implores crowds of young men to refuse to serve their country

"That one Negro holds the face of his dead white comrade in his arms and cries pitifully in a dirty mud hole in Vietnam — and another Negro screams with hate against his white brother on the streets of countless American cities

"That one boy lies in a coffin beneath the ground because he believed in duty to country — and another boy lies on a dingy cot giving blood to the enemies of his country

"That one man of God shields a wounded boy from an enemy bayonet with his body and dies — and another man of God uses his cloth as a shield to preach hate, dissension and lawlessness

"My God, how can it be?

Business Week magazine has some hints on how much liquor one needs for parties at home. Consumption ranges from two to eight drinks per person with very few "twos." You'll need about a quart for every four guests, on the basis of figuring five drinks per guest. The usual holiday party buying is 25 per cent bourbon, 25 per cent Scotch, 25 per cent gin, 10 per cent rum and 10 per cent vodka with 5 per cent miscellaneous. In the South boost the bourbon 10 per cent; in the Northeast (that's us) boost the Scotch 10 per cent. If you add up to more than a 100 per cent variety, that's the way holiday parties go.

Department of Cyrokinetics:

While ice for sprains, muscle aches, etc., has been recommended by local physicians for years, ice treatment is being recommended even more today according to the Wall Street Journal. Ice stops pain in many cases much quicker than heat. You can freeze water in an orange juice can and roll it on your back. Use a cardboard coffee cup with a handle as a rub down. The handle gives you a comfortable hold. Doctors also suggest that a five to ten minute rub with an ice cube helps skin itching. However if brain surgery is involved do not consult this column, try your physician.

U. S. wars unpopular in varying degrees

Peace parties certain as death and taxes

By Richard L. Worsnop
Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON — "The friends of peace will become so strong," the enemy general predicted, "that the next administration will go in on that basis." Thus, it was necessary only "to resist manfully" until voters in the United States elected a new President.

The foregoing appraisal of American peace sentiment was made, not by Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap of North Vietnam, but by Gen. Robert E. Lee in a letter to his wife in 1863. In the American Civil War as in the Vietnam war, opposition to an unpopular conflict found expression in a "peace" movement.

The current peace movement consists of old-line pacifist organizations, apolitical groups formed to oppose the Vietnam War, and dissident Democrats who oppose President Johnson as well as the war. Their over-all strength, difficult to calculate, is diminished by lack of common leadership and goals. But the presidential candidacy of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy may conceivably provide a rallying point.

McCarthy announced on Nov. 30 that he would enter four presidential primaries this year to oppose President Johnson's war policies. The senator has since indicated that he might enter as many as seven additional primaries. McCarthy says that he is "not for peace at any price but for an honorable, rational, and political solution to this war."

New England against War of 1812

American peace movements date back to colonial times, and they have flourished in periods of peace as well as of war. The first major peace movement after the War of Independence occurred during the War of 1812, one of the least popular conflicts in American history. Governors in New England refused to call out the militia, and bankers in that region loaned more money to the enemy than to their own government. A convention held in Northampton, Mass., in July 1812 declared the war to be "neither just, necessary, nor expedient," and called on President Madison to sue for peace.

Peace or defeatist movements were active in both the Union and the Confederacy during the Civil War. In the North, the Peace Democrats or Copperheads plotted against what they considered a war for abolition and for the fattening of "Eastern capitalists" and clamored for an immediate truce. Clandestine Copperhead propaganda, aimed at undermining the morale of soldiers and encouraging desertion, was remarkably successful.

The antiwar movement in the South was compounded of war weariness, resentment against regimentation by the Jefferson Davis regime, and a conviction on the part of poorer southerners "that the struggle after all was 'a rich man's war and a poor man's fight'." Two Confederate underground groups, with total estimated membership of 100,000, killed or drove away military recruiters, encouraged desertion, terrorized the countryside, gave information to the enemy, and weakened morale generally.

The peace issue or related issues have been raised in several presidential elections. William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic nominee in 1900, campaigned against imperialism — acquisition of former Spanish colonies in the Spanish-American War of 1898. One reason why Woodrow Wilson was re-elected in 1916 was that "He kept us out of war." Dwight D. Eisenhower's pledge of Oct. 24, 1952 — "I shall go to Korea" — contributed to his landslide victory in the presidential election less than two weeks later.

Perhaps the greatest problem now facing peace organizations is that they often are suspected of being Communist-inspired. The problem dates back to 1932, when the American League Against War and Facism was formed. It and a number of other peace groups active in the 1930s were Communist fronts.

Role of communists

Fear of Communist infiltration underlies the current dispute within the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy (SANE), one of the leading peace groups active today. Robert J. Schwartz, a member of the SANE board of directors, has no objection to entering into an alliance with Communists. "SANE has no more right to police the peace movement than the U.S. government has to police the world," Schwartz believes. But other leaders of the organization feel that acceptance of Communist support would result in a drastic loss of popular support.

Sen. McCarthy, in the opinion of many political analysts, must not become too closely identified with the more radical antiwar groups lest he alienate the great bloc of voters who oppose both the war and the violent demonstrations mounted against it. At the same time, he must fashion a program for peace that is sufficiently different from that of President Johnson to offer the voters a clear choice on Vietnam policy.

Where are our cops?

WASHINGTON — An American woman is raped every 12 minutes. A house in the United States is burglarized every 27 seconds. Someone is robbed every 4½ minutes in this nation. The nationwide police shortage stands at a staggering 50,000.

These random facts are based in part on the 1967 report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The FBI on Dec. 11 reported a 60 per cent rise in bank robberies over the first nine months of 1967. All crimes were up by 16 per cent over the like 1966 period. All robberies were up by 27 per cent. Murders were 16 per cent higher, aggravated assault was up 9 per cent, and rape went up 7 per cent.

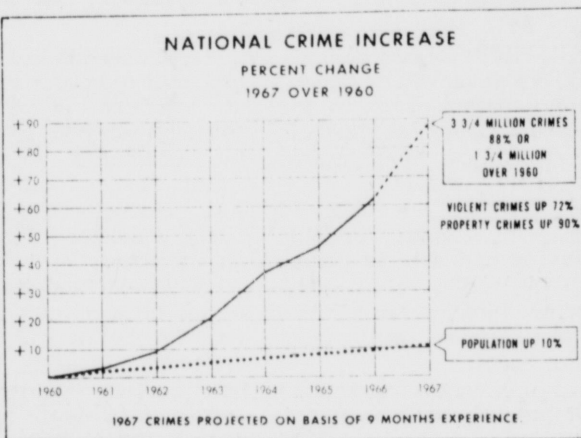

Big cities registered an overall 15 per cent crime rise. The suburbs suffered a 17 per cent increase, and rural areas the surprising 12 per cent. Regionally, the crime trend showed increases of 14 per cent in Southern states; 15 per cent in Western states; 17 per cent in the North-Central area; and 18 per cent in the Northeast.

Some measure of the rise in crime comes from other random data. At least $2,245,888 has been stolen in 45 major robberies at Kennedy International Airport since Dec. 15, 1966. The July riots in Detroit produced these grim totals: 43 dead, 5,000 homeless, hundreds injured, nearly 5,000 prosecuted arrests. Bucolic Harrisburg, Pa., according to its acting mayor, is "in a state of distress because of crime in the streets."

President Johnson on Dec. 11 said the FBI crime report illustrates "some consequences of delaying new federal support for our police departments and other agencies of criminal justice." He urged passage of the "most comprehensive anti-crime legislation in the nation's history: The Safe Streets and Crime Control Act." The measure was stalled in the Senate when Congress adjourned.

In signing the District of Columbia crime bill on Dec. 27, the President said: "The will to solve this (crime) problem must engage us all. Public order is the structure on which any society grows and prospers."

Supreme Court decisions in recent years

restricting police powers have aroused much controversy. The Court now has before it several controversial "stop and frisk" cases. These involve powers of police to stop and search individuals for weapons when they do not have enough evidence for arrest.

A real problem is the lack of police manpower. The Reader's Digest reports after studying 36 police departments from Boston to Honolulu that "not one is up to authorized strength."

The Detroit police department is training a 1,000-man auxiliary force to assist firemen, guard public installations, and control crowds. Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago on Dec. 27 promised to put on the force 5,000 more policemen of necessary. New York City has a crack police force of 20,000, and Mayor John V. Lindsay is beefing up his patrol manpower hiring civilians for clerical and other duties.

The District of Columbia has recruited 186 new policemen from the armed forces. Many cities are offering pay incentives to college-trained policemen.

It's about time: a veteran policeman in Louisville, Ky., makes only a nickel more an hour than a general laborer. And Louisville's no special case.

WEEKDAY LUNCH

This is a good way to use roast beef leftover from the weekend.

Roast Beef Hash Chili      Sauce
Salad Bowl Bread      Tray
Fruit and Cookies      Beverage

ROAST BEEF HASH

2 cups ground (medium blade) leftover roast beef, packed down

1 cup mashed potatoes (from a package of instant dehydrated potatoes)

1/2 cup finely diced onion
1/2 teaspoon salt

1-1/2 tsp white pepper
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons butter

In a bowl thoroughly mix together all the ingredients except the butter. In an 8-inch skillet over moderate heat melt the butter; add the hash mixture and without stirring, brown on one side. ### Doctors Say Hormones Make Skin Look Younger Safely

NEW YORK (Special): — A leading dermatologist and his assistants have conducted a "half-woman" test that proves conclusively that estrogenic hormones make skin look younger, smooth, dry, skin wrinkles, often fade "old-age" skin discolorations.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck and to one hand of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula containing no hormones was used on the other side. It was quickly apparent that the side treated with hormones looked better. At the end of the test in all but two cases, skin lines were definitely less noticeable, complexion was softer, smoother, fresher. There was no local irritation in any case; examination revealed absolutely no systemic effects. The hormones had beautified effectively and safely.

In an effort to speed up hormone's beautifying action, a trustworthy 54-year-old laboratory developed a fluid formula called HORMONEX Beauty Serum. This laboratory conducted a test on 125,000 women volunteers who were asked to use the formula for just twelve days on one side of the face and neck. An impressive percentage significant that good results were attained even in this short period.

HORMONEX Beauty Serum acts so rapidly because pure female hormones are dissolved in a combination of penetrating Sesame Oil and a patented, liquid Lanolin. Only 7 drops a day are required to treat face and neck.

If you would like to test HORMONEX Beauty Serum without risk, get a bottle at your favorite beauty counter today, use it just twelve days. If the change is not astounding—if you are not completely satisfied, your dealer is authorized to refund purchase price without question. HORMONEX Beauty Serum is inexpensive to use. A 100-day supply costs only $3.50. Look younger quickly. See these dry-skin wrinkles smooth out, starting today! You may obtain HORMONEX Beauty Serum at:

Ann Landers

Christmastime ego

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me why normally intelligent people seem to take leave of their senses at Christmas time? I refer to those individuals who sit down and compose interminable chronicles of the year's activities, have them mimeographed (usually a poor job) and proceed to send the drivel to everyone whose last name they can spell.

Isn't this the height of egocentricity? What makes these people think anyone (save a special few) are interested in wading through all that stuff?

For several years we have been receiving family newsletters and I've had it up to here. I guess what really galls me is the way everyone tries to paint such a glowing picture of affluence and success. I have before me a fistful of chatty little Christmas letters. I'm going to lift a few sentences from each to illustrate the point. (The names of persons and organizations have been changed for obvious reasons):

"Dear Friends: What a wonderful year we have had! Jim was named Vice President of the bank so we celebrated by buying a Mercedes and taking a trip to the Orient. In addition to his Boy Scout work, Jim served as Chairman of the United Fund Drive. He is still on the Hospital Board and President of Kiwanis. Just for laughs he played the lead in the Little Theater production last June and everyone said he was better than the star who did it on Broadway. His first love, however, is still Conservation and he continues to work hard as chairman of the Committee to fight Dutch Elm disease.

"After completing my term as Junior League president I swore I would take life easy but it seems I am more involved than ever. I accepted the Vice Presidency of the Garden Club and am still active in the D.A.R. Our church organist became ill and they asked me to substitute so I accepted. I ran the rummage sale for the Eastern Star again this year and managed to take a course in flower-arranging which was offered by a Japanese exchange student.

"Jim Jr. was elected class president and won his letters in football and basketball. He is on the All-State debate team and placed third in the national oratory contest last May. We were surprised when we read in the paper that he had won a $100 prize in an essay contest sponsored by the American Legion. We didn't even know he had entered! He has already been accepted by Harvard." And so it goes . . . until you could up-chuck.

Next year, Ann Landers, I am going to send a newsletter to all the people who have been sending US newsletters. It will read something like this and I hope they get the hint:

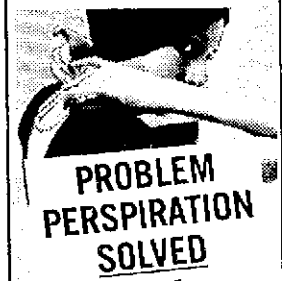

"Dear Friends: We had a perfectly rotten year. Hal was passed over for promotion again so he got mad and quit. He hasn't lined up a new job as yet but he has his name in at two agencies and he looks in the papers every day.

Hal Jr. was defeated for home-room monitor. He flunked French and will have to go to summer school. Billy has not had a haircut since August and had to hack his guitar to pay for repairing his Honda which he wrecked. My mother-in-law's annual two-week visit in May turned into two months, and my migraines got so bad I had to go back into therapy.

As I write this, the whole family is down with the flu and I don't feel so good myself. We hope next year is better. It couldn't be much worse. Love to all.

Ann Landers

Christmastime ego

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me why normally intelligent people seem to take leave of their senses at Christmas time? I refer to those individuals who sit down and compose interminable chronicles of the year's activities, have them mimeographed (usually a poor job) and proceed to send the drivel to everyone whose last name they can spell.

Isn't this the height of egocentricity? What makes these people think anyone (save a special few) are interested in wading through all that stuff?

For several years we have been receiving family newsletters and I've had it up to here. I guess what really galls me is the way everyone tries to paint such a glowing picture of affluence and success. I have before me a fistful of chatty little Christmas letters. I'm going to lift a few sentences from each to illustrate the point. (The names of persons and organizations have been changed for obvious reasons):

"Dear Friends: What a wonderful year we have had! Jim was named Vice President of the bank so we celebrated by buying a Mercedes and taking a trip to the Orient. In addition to his Boy Scout work, Jim served as Chairman of the United Fund Drive. He is still on the Hospital Board and President of Kiwanis. Just for laughs he played the lead in the Little Theater production last June and everyone said he was better than the star who did it on Broadway. His first love, however, is still Conservation and he continues to work hard as chairman of the Committee to fight Dutch Elm disease.

"After completing my term as Junior League president I swore I would take life easy but it seems I am more involved than ever. I accepted the Vice Presidency of the Garden Club and am still active in the D.A.R. Our church organist became ill and they asked me to substitute so I accepted. I ran the rummage sale for the Eastern Star again this year and managed to take a course in flower-arranging which was offered by a Japanese exchange student.

"Jim Jr. was elected class president and won his letters in football and basketball. He is on the All-State debate team and placed third in the national oratory contest last May. We were surprised when we read in the paper that he had won a $100 prize in an essay contest sponsored by the American Legion. We didn't even know he had entered! He has already been accepted by Harvard." And so it goes . . . until you could upchuck.

Next year, Ann Landers, I am going to send a newsletter to all the people who have been sending US newsletters. It will read something like this and I hope they get the hint:

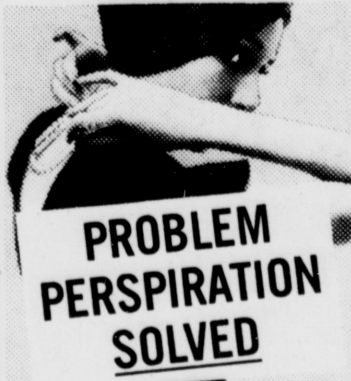

Dear Friends: We had a perfectly rotten year. Hal was passed over for promotion again so he got mad and quit. He hasn't lined up a new job as yet but he has his name in at two agencies and he looks in the papers every day.

Hal Jr. was defeated for home-room monitor. He flunked French and will have to go to summer school. Billy has not had a haircut since August and had to hock his guitar to pay for repairing his Honda which he wrecked. My mother-in-law's annual two-week visit in May turned into two months, and my migraines got so bad I had to go back into therapy.

As I write this, the whole family is down with the flu and I don't feel so good myself. We hope next year is better. It couldn't be much worse. Love to all.

County names Canfield to Sealer of Weights post

STROUDSBURG — Gerald D. Canfield, Baronsville Justice of the Peace and defeated Republican candidate for Prothonotary, was named county Sealer of Weights and Measures Monday by the Monroe County Commissioners. Canfield replaced Floyd Butz, Democrat, appointed to the $2,000 a year post by the past board of commissioners. Commissioners unanimously approved a motion by GOP commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shakkits to hire Canfield for the post.

Approves employment
In other business a salary board session late Monday afternoon approved the hiring of Miss Elizabeth Natur, 18, of Mount Pocono, as a secretary in the county school board office at $70 per week effective Feb. 2, 1968.

Dr. John A. Abbruzzese, assistant county superintendent of schools, said Miss Natur will replace Mrs. Judy Marvin who resigned to devote her time to her family.

Miss Natur has previously worked for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D.C., as a secretary but was advised to return to Monroe County due to health reasons.

In other business during the marathon session, commissioners said they would make printed agendas for their bi-weekly meetings available to the press and radio prior to the Monday and Thursday morning sessions.

Freeman loses out in appeal

STROUDSBURG — Donald Richard Freeman, serving in Western Penitentiary for the murder of Claude Ludwig in a West Main St. cottage in 1965, lost out in an appeal for re-trial on an order signed by former President Judge Fred W. Davis.

Freeman returned to Monroe County in August for proceedings after he filed a petition under the Post Conviction Act of Jan. 25, 1968.

Judge Davis signed the order dismissing the petition Dec. 28 on the basis that:

1. The petitioner's Federal right to be warned of his Constitutional right to remain silent was not infringed upon.
2. The petitioner's Federal right to representation by counsel in an in-custody police interrogation was not infringed upon.
3. The petitioner knowingly and intelligently waived his Federal and State right of appeal.

Freeman was convicted of second-degree murder by a Monroe County jury in 1965.

Freeman's appeal was filed by his court-appointed attorney J. Joseph McCluskey of Stroudsburg. Former District Attorney James R. Marsh presented the Commonwealth's case.

Sheriff presents operating budget of $92,534 to county commission

STROUDSBURG — New Sheriff Forrest Sebring presented a whopping $92,534 operating budget Monday during a four and one-half hour split-day session of the Monroe County Commissioners in the county courthouse.

The figure is nearly $30,000 more than last year's budget under past sheriff Edward Metzgar who did not seek re-election.

Sebring explained the figure represents budgets for both the county jail and the sheriff's office in the county courthouse at $27,981 or the courthouse office and $64,553 for the jail facilities. According to Sebring the lion's share of the new budget will go for salaries if approved by the commissioners.

Salary figure
Sebring plans a $41,000 total salary figure in the budget that states turnkeys for an $85 per week salary up from the present $70.

The new Republican sheriff said the budget provides for two men around the clock at the jail, bringing the total to seven guards on hand.

At present there are four such employees with a request to hire three additional county employees, Sebring said.

Sebring told the commissioners the staff "will still be short three men," according to Department of Correction recommendations.

Speaking of the inmates at the jail Sebring said that Monroe County tends to run far above the state average for prisoners in a seventh class county.

"We have the highest number of prisoners for a county our size," he said and added that the average for seventh-class counties is between four and 17 prisoners.

There are 25 prisoners now in the county jail, Sebring said.

Sebring said he feels the increase over last year's figure is due to the increased salaries and additional employees.

Sebring, whose salary is set at $6,420, said he plans to crackdown on any vandalism on the part of prisoners.

Prisoners responsible
The sheriff said if towels or linen is missing when it comes time for a prisoner to turn in the items he will be held financially responsible for the property.

Sebring reported that on separate occasions towels have been reported missing and a mattress was set on fire by inmates.

Sebring also mentioned he would like to revamp the physical education program for inmates of the jail and suggested the possibility of hiring a Health and Physical Education Major from East Stroudsburg State College to head the program.

Exercise period
According to Sebring, the law requires a two-hour daily exercise period.

Sebring also said he believed a suggestion by commissioner chairman Elwood Hintze to hire retired persons in the jail is impractical as he said they are limited to a set income and would only work until their limit had been reached in order to comply with Social Security regulations.

Commissioner Arlington "Bud" Martin asked if there was a possibility the sheriff's office could be moved from its present second-floor courthouse location to the jail.

Sebring said he felt the move impractical due to space limitations and traffic within the jail.

THE NO-CALORIE DIET

No fats, no carbohydrates, no proteins, no nothing. That's the kind of diet for close to 10,000 men, women and children in underdeveloped countries are dying on every day.

Simply because there's not enough food to go around. And not enough know-how to grow more.

What you know about farming (or what we can teach you) can mean the beginning of the end of starvation to people in the 50 nations where the Peace Corps works. What you know about planning, for instance. Or irrigating or fertilizing or crop rotation or growing livestock. Or anything else you can help them help themselves with.

What will you get out of it? Two years of living completely on your own in a completely strange environment. Hard work and challenge and frustration. But maybe for a lot of people you'll have changed a diet of ignorance into one of knowledge. Sickness into health. Despair into hope. And can you think of a better diet?

Planners costs rise $12,000

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission Monday officially presented a "bare minimum" $41,000 operating budget for 1968 to the county commissioners during an afternoon meeting in the courthouse.

The figure put the day's budget requests at more than $133,000 as Monroe County Sheriff Forrest Sebring earlier submitted a $92,534 request.

Actually the planning commission budget, an increase of nearly $12,000 over last year, was submitted to the previous board of commissioners in November but was tabled for action by the newly-elected board.

No action on the request was taken Monday.

According to Ralph Reppert, planning chairman, the $41,000 figure is needed as a minimum figure to operate the planning commission with the possibility the county will not receive an anticipated $47,000 in federal 701 funds.

Skeleton budget
John Mills, budget committee chairman for the planners, said he felt the budget has been cut to almost a "skeleton" for 1968.

The question of possible federal funds through the 701 program was discussed at length by planning director Leonard Ziolkowski during the two-hour afternoon session with the commissioners.

Ziolkowski said he doesn't expect to receive the requested funds until March, but admitted it was an optimistic estimate.

Emphasizing that the planning budget was drawn up with the thought federal funds might not be granted, Ziolkowski said, "We have to have at least $41,000 to operate, assuming we get no federal funds."

County Solicitor Elmer Christine asked why the figure is up from last year's county share of $29,000, an increase of about 46 per cent according to commissioner chairman Elwood Hinte.

Over-optimistic
According to Ziolkowski, the increase is due to an over-optimistic look to federal funds last year.

"We underestimated our expenses last year," the planning director admitted.

When asked by Hinte if the planners were "happy" with the budget, Ziolkowski said some of his employees were not happy with the salaries approved by the commission's budget and executive committees.

A requested salary of $12,675 for Ziolkowski was chopped to $12,500 by the commission but still represents an increase over the director's $11,375 salary of last year.

Informed sources have indicated that Jay Snyder, planning technician, is not satisfied with his present salary.

Ziolkowski, who said the planners are now in the "developing program" stage of their work, added, "The budget being submitted to you is not padded," and "I say that in all sincerity."

Hinte remarked he was more interested "in dollars and cents and what's best for the county," rather than the programs.

The total budget for the commission is actually more than $70,000 for the phase two county comprehensive planning program with an overall budget of nearly $80,000.

(Related stories on page 8)

A 147,000 share of the 701 budget hinges on the fate of the phase two application for federal funds to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, representing two-thirds of the planning costs.

If the amount is received it will leave $23,000 as a local share of the phase two budget.

According to the budget presented by the planners, there is an operating balance of $2,734 on the commission's books.

Milford elects Geiger

MILFORD—William C. Geiger was reelected president of Milford Borough Council Monday during a reorganizational meeting in the borough building.

Merritt B. Quinn was reelected vice president. The meeting was conducted by Mayor Maurice May.

Mrs. Dorothy S. Tisdale was reappointed to the Milford Water Authority for a five year term and Orville Nearing was reappointed to the board of adjustments for a three-year term.

The council voted to advertise for a budget of $50,500. If approved this will be for a 23 mill tax.

The budget, adopted unanimously, lists operating expenses at $37,900. The debt service is $76,976. The Municipal Authority will have a surplus balance of $35,125.

The Authority's current slate of officers were all reappointed. They are:

Frigid weather could break mark today

STROUDSBURG — A six-year-old Monroe County record low for Jan. 9 could be broken early this morning, if the wind dies down, according to William Haggerty, weather reporter for the United States Weather Bureau.

"If the wind dies down tonight, it could drop to 20 degrees below zero," Haggerty said Monday.

The mercury dipped to 13 below on Jan. 9, 1962. The all time record low for Stroudsburg is 36 below on Feb. 5, 1943, Haggerty revealed.

A list of unofficial sub-zero temperatures late Monday night in Monroe, Pike and Wayne counties are as follows:

Stroudsburg	-4
East Stroudsburg	-3
McMichaels	-8
South Sterling	-12
Canadensis	-11
Tolyhanna	-11
White Haven	-9
Matamoras	-8
Milford	-9
Fern Ridge	-7
Mount Pocono	-11
Buck Hill Falls	-8
Skytop	-9
Hawley	-12

Subfreezing temperatures depend on a lack of wind and "good radiation conditions," Haggerty pointed out.

"Radiation cooling" is when the cold air drops down through the warm air and settles in lower areas. Then the cold air builds up in intensity and the mercury sags, sometimes producing record lows.

Cold heavy
"Most people are unaware that cold air is heavier than warm air and that the real cold spots are in the valleys and not in the hills," Haggerty said.

Joel Meyers, Penn State meteorologist, and weather forecaster for several Northeast ski resorts, predicted a possible 20 below, sometime early this morning for the Poconos.

Several Pocono ski resorts rang out with the same refrain, "We've never had such a rash of cold weather." One ski resort manager said his resort was rapidly reaching the point of "overkill" in making more artificial snow.

As of late Monday night he was still undecided as to whether to pump another couple of inches on to an already thick snow blanket of ski trails.

He said that Meyers had told him that the top of Mount Washington, N.H., had recorded 47 below early Monday morning.

A gradual warming trend will begin today with temperatures reaching up into the high teens.

The bone marrow cold took its toll of dead batteries, overheated radiators and hard to start cars in Monroe County Monday.

Frostbite cases
The General Hospital at Monroe County reported two cases of frostbite over the weekend.

The Monroe County Highway Department continues to clear up and push back snow from highway shoulders, according to superintendent William Quinn.

Quinn said his department was kept busy pushing back snow drifting into highways during the last two days because of high winds.

Over 50 Monroe County gas stations averaged 25 emergency calls for dead batteries, Monday, according to a Pocono Record sample survey.

On this basis it is estimated that over 1,000 batteries went dead throughout the county Monday.

In a pamphlet "How To Go On Ice and Snow" the AAA Motor Club of Northeast Pennsylvania advises area drivers on checking batteries, anti-freeze, water hoses, windshield wipers, heater and defroster, brakes and exhausts.

Snow tools

The AAA Motor Club suggests carrying the following items in a car: reinforced tire chains, sand or traction mats, a small snow shovel, ice scraper, snow brush and flashlight.

The club recommends paying strict attention to icy surfaces. Slow down before reaching each curve, creep around icy corners to prevent skids. When entering a curve, turn steering wheel gradually and no further than necessary. On icy curves traction may be improved by using the shoulder of the road.

If the rear of the car starts skidding, release the accelerator and steer the front of the car in the direction the rear is skidding. Just as soon as the car starts to straighten out, straighten the front wheels but don't oversteer.

Be especially wary on days when the temperature rises to 32 degrees, the club warns. At that temperature, stopping distances on ice are twice as great as at zero degrees.

John Spencer, Northern Monroe County game warden, said area animals have nothing to fear from the sub freezing weather.

"The deer pull into the swamps with their inflated fur coats," Spencer said. "The coats are just like insulated underwear."

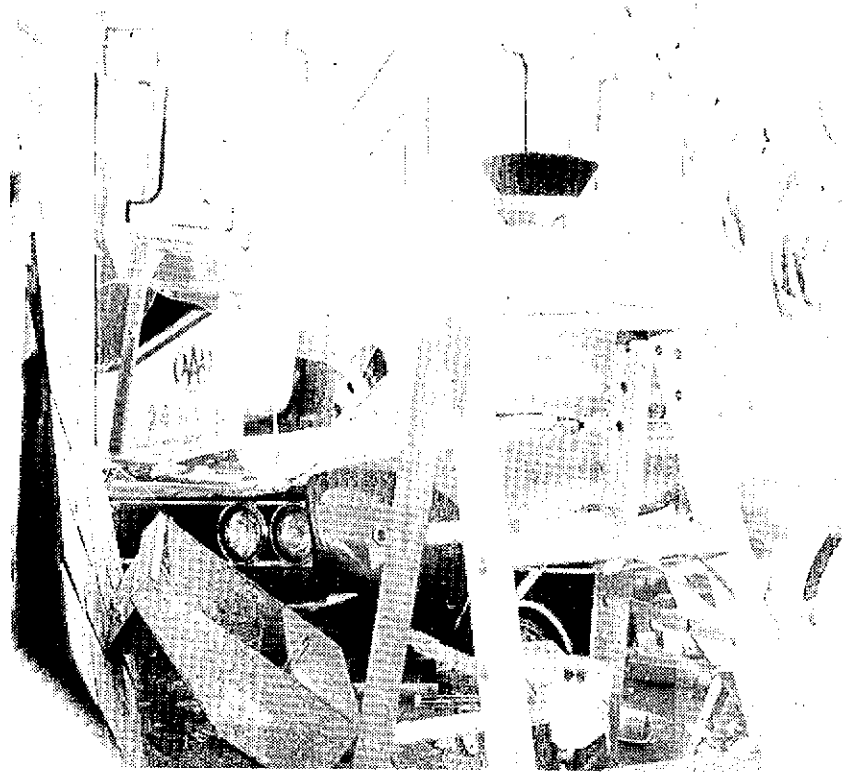

The deeper the snow gets, the higher the snowshoe rabbit can jump, he said.

Birds plentiful

Even the permanent birds don't seem to object to the freezing silent air. "The other day I saw hundreds of row birds," John C. Glasson, area bird expert, said Monday. "They're rare for this time of year."

Other birds seen at this time of year include starlings, cardinals, finches, sparrows, mocking birds and woodpeckers.

Perhaps two persons who envied these birds with their warm protective fur coats are the mailman and the paper boy who made their chilly morning rounds!

This car tried to get in out of the cold Monday by entering the front of Miller's Paint Store at Third and Main Streets, Stroudsburg. Actually, the car, driven by Mrs. Alice Greening, Milford RD 1, went out of control after being hit from the rear.

Local insurance agent backs bids

STROUDSBURG — Harry Mullins, a partner in the E. A. Bell insurance agency, Stroudsburg, Monday presented his views on the county's insurance coverage to the Monroe County Commissioners.

Mullins, representing the Maryland Casualty Co., told the board he firmly believes the insurance coverage "should be bid," and took exception with statements made by Stroudsburg Mayor Joseph Small, now the county's insurance agent, last Thursday.

"I'm annoyed with the way the issue was first handled," Mullins said, "and would like the opportunity to submit a bid."

The county coverage flared into a problem when outgoing Commissioner Stanley Rader county agent although he did not submit a bid.

No cheating
Mullins charged that remarks made by Small that bidding would tend to have agents "cheat" to lower premiums were "ridiculous" and added that with proper specifications "cheating" would be impossible.

The local agent suggested the commissioners set up a committee comprised of "no more than three" local agents to draw up specifications for the county coverage.

Mullins also challenged a statement by Small saying the county could expect a premium return for rates set for trucks that have been sold and the transformation of a county-owned barn.

Mullins said the return would be "minimal" and "insignificant."

Ambiguous

The Bell representative, who submitted a bid for the county's blanket coverage said he felt the letter requesting bids sent by the county was ambiguous as it did not specify bids were desired for the separate coverage.

Asked if he, (Mullins) would be satisfied to have only the workman's policy, he replied, "Certainly, we'd love to have that."

Small has indicated he would not write the compensation unless he was also awarded the blanket coverage.

Mullins, referring to last week's question by Ms. Nancy Shukaitis on the coverage applying to the county-owned bridges, said the spans are covered as far as legal liability is concerned.

Hinte indicated that the board would ask Walter McClelland, Crowe Insurance Agent, to also appear before the board Thursday.

Lady driver enters store, with car

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Borough Police investigated a two-car accident with no injuries, but one of the cars ended up in a store display window.

According to police, cars driven by Mrs. Barbara L. Strang of 225 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Alice Greening of Milford R.D. 1, were traveling east on Main Street at the time of the accident.

Mrs. Greening was making a left turn into Third Street when she was struck from behind by the Strang vehicle.

The force of the crash pushed the Greening car around on Third Street and caused it to crash into Miller's Paint Store on the corner of Third and Main streets.

Douse Readers' chimney fire

READERS — The Jackson Township Fire Co. doused a small chimney fire in a Readers summer home of Edward Curley, Yardley, Pa. Damage was estimated to be $200.

The home was occupied by Curley's daughter who was skiing at the time of the fire.

Stroud Twp. firemen fight house fire in Pocono Twp.

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Township firemen were called Monday to a fire near Bartonsville, in Pocono Township, and fought the blaze despite jurisdiction.

Fire Chief Lester Rice said his company was called by men working at the site of the fire.

"The fire was at the old Wilbur Hay place and was a building that the workmen were tearing down to make way for the new truck terminal to be built on the property," Rice said.

The workmen, according to Rice, had started to burn the building but when the flames got high enough to endanger utility lines they pushed it over and when they did the building "really started to burn."

Stroud Township firemen used approximately 500 gallons of water on the fire. There were three trucks and 50 men at the scene.

Parked cars hinder snow removal

STROUDSBURG — The mounting problems of snow removal during severe snow build-ups could be alleviated by the combined cooperation of all local residents.

According to Harold Snyder, Stroudsburg, borough manager, the two common annoyances that trouble the removal of snow in the borough are when service stations and other businesses dump their snow into the streets and the parking of cars during plowing of snow.

The snow plow is not easy to maneuver between parked cars and requires a wide area for safety clearance. One or two parked cars prevent clearing snow from the adjacent three parking areas, explained Snyder.

An Ordinance is under consideration by the borough to provide for necessary regulation in the removal of snow. The council is studying existing ordinances from other municipalities, said Snyder.

Cooperation and courtesy is still emphasized, however, added Snyder.

Div. commander, second from right, Monday during the general's inspection of the East Stroudsburg National Guard unit. Looking on are Capt. Ronald Shick, local commander, second from right, and Sgt. First Class Raymond Corey.

EAST STROUDSBURG — "I am well pleased with my visit here tonight," Brig. Gen. Frank Townsend, assistant commander, 28th Inf. Div., said Monday night after inspecting Co. C Pennsylvania National Guard in East Stroudsburg.

The general's visit was his first in Monroe County on an official visit. He had been here last October accompanying another Army officer who was making an inspection.

"I came here tonight to make an Annual Command Inspection in place of the Division Commander, who could not make it," Gen. Townsend said.

In an informal talk after the inspection, Gen. Townsend praised the local unit and all national guardsmen in northeastern Pennsylvania.

"While inspecting the men I ask questions relating to their civilian job and how it ties in with their military job. The men gave me intelligent answers," Gen. Townsend said.

"One of the things that stick out in my mind is the fact that only two of the men I spoke to were 'drop-outs,'" he said.

The inspection covers, in addition to the personnel, administrative records, training plans, training facilities, and the facility itself.

A member of the inspecting team pointed out that the local unit was the first unit in the state to receive the light recovery vehicle.

The vehicle is made in the states and costs approximately $77,000.

In civilian life Gen. Townsend is a Wilkes-Barre attorney.

Mullins charged that remarks made by Small that bidding would tend to have agents "chisel" to lower premiums were "ridiculous" and added that with proper specifications "chiseling" would be impossible.

The local agent suggested the commissioners set up a committee comprised of "no more than three" local agents to draw up specifications for the county coverage.

Mullins also challenged a statement by Small saying the county could expect a premium return for rates set for trucks that have been sold and the transformation of a county-owned barn.

Mullins said the return would be "minimal" and "insignificant."

Ambiguous
The Bell representative, who submitted a bid for the county's blanket coverage said he felt the letter requesting bids sent by the county was ambiguous as it did not specify bids were desired for the separate coverage.

Asked if he, (Mullins) would be satisfied to have only the workman's policy, he replied, "Certainly, we'd love to have that."

Small has indicated he would not write the compensation unless he was also awarded the blanket coverage.

Mullins, referring to last week's question by Ms. Nancy Shukaitis on the coverage applying to the county-owned bridges, said the spans are covered as far as legal liability is concerned.

Hintze indicated that the board would ask Walter McClelland, Crowe Insurance Agent, to also appear before the board Thursday.

Lady driver enters store, with car

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Borough Police investigated a two-car accident with no injuries, but one of the cars ended up in a store display window.

According to police, cars driven by Mrs. Barbara L. Strang of 225 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Alice Greening of Milford R.D. 1, were traveling east on Main Street at the time of the accident.

Mrs. Greening was making a left turn into Third Street when she was struck from behind by the Strang vehicle.

The force of the crash pushed the Greening car around on Third Street and caused it to crash into Miller's Paint Store on the corner of Third and Main streets.

Douse Reeder's chimney fire

REEDERS — The Jackson Township Fire Co. doused a small chimney fire in a Reeder's summer home of Edward Curley, Yardley, Pa. Damage was estimated to be $200.

The home was occupied by Curley's daughter who was skiing at the time of the fire.

Three pieces of equipment and 22 men responded to the 5:45 p.m. call.

Frigid weather could break mark today

STROUDSBURG — A six-year-old Monroe County record low for Jan. 9 could be broken early this morning, if the wind dies down, according to William Haggerty, weather reporter for the United States Weather Bureau.

"If the wind dies down tonight, it could drop to 20 degrees below zero," Haggerty said Monday.

The mercury dipped to 13 below on Jan. 9, 1962. The all time record low for Stroudsburg is 36 below on Feb. 5, 1943. Haggerty revealed.

A list of unofficial sub-zero temperatures late Monday night in Monroe, Pike and Wayne counties are as follows:

Stroudsburg	-4
East Stroudsburg	-3
McMichaels	-8
South Sterling	-12
Canadensis	-11
Tobyhanna	-1
White Haven	-9
Matamoras	-8
Milford	-9
Fern Ridge	-7
Mount Pocono	-11
Buck Hill Falls	-8
Skytop	-9
Hawley	-12

Subfreezing temperatures depend on a lack of wind and "good radiation conditions," Haggerty pointed out.

"Radiation cooling" is when the cold air drops down through the warm air and settles in lower areas. Then the cold air builds up in intensity and the mercury sags, sometimes producing record lows.

Cold heavy
"Most people are unaware that cold air is heavier than warm air and that the real cold spots are in the valleys and not in the hills," Haggerty said. Joel Meyers, Penn State meteorologist, and weather forecaster for several Northeast ski resorts, predicted a possible 20 below, sometime early this morning for the Poconos.

Several Pocono ski resorts rang out with the same refrain, "We've never had such a rash of cold weather." One ski resort manager said his resort was rapidly reaching the point of "overkill" in making more artificial snow.

As of late Monday night he was still undecided as to whether to pump another couple of inches on to an already thick snow blanket of ski trails.

He said that Meyers had told him that the top of Mount Washington, N.H., had recorded 47 below early Monday morning.

A gradual warming trend will begin today with temperatures reaching up into the high teens.

The bone marrow cold took its toll of dead batteries, overheated radiators and hard to start cars in Monroe County Monday.

Frostbite cases
The General Hospital of Monroe County reported two cases of frostbite over the weekend.

The Monroe County Highway Department continues to clear up and push back snow from highway shoulders, according to superintendent William Quinn.

Quinn said his department was kept busy pushing back snow drifting into highways during the last two days because of high winds.

Over 50 Monroe County gas stations averaged 25 emergency calls for dead batteries, Monday, according to a Pocono Record sample survey.

On this basis it is estimated that over 1,000 batteries went dead throughout the county Monday.

In a pamphlet "How To Go On Ice and Snow" the AAA Motor Club of Northeast Pennsylvania advises area drivers on checking batteries, anti-freeze, water hoses, windshield wipers, heater and defroster, brakes and exhausts.

Snow tools
The AAA Motor Club suggests carrying the following items in a car: reinforced tire chains, sand or traction mats, a small snow shovel, ice scraper, snow brush and flashlight.

The club recommends paying strict attention to icy surfaces. Slow down before reaching each curve, creep around icy corners to prevent skids. When entering a curve, turn steering wheel gradually and no further than necessary. On icy curves traction may be improved by using the shoulder of the road.

If the rear of the car starts skidding, release the accelerator and steer the front of the car in the direction the rear is skidding. Just as soon as the car starts to straighten out, straighten the front wheels but don't oversteer.

Be especially wary on days when the temperature rises to 32 degrees, the club warns. At that temperature, stopping distances on ice are twice as great as at zero degrees.

John Spencer, Northern Monroe County game warden, said area animals have nothing to fear from the sub freezing weather.

"The deer pull into the swamps with their inflated fur coats," Spencer said. "The coats are just like insulated underwear."

The deeper the snow gets, the higher the snowshoe rabbit can jump, he said.

Birds plentiful

Even the permanent birds don't seem to object to the freezing silent air. "The other day I saw hundreds of cow birds," John C. Glasson, area bird expert, said Monday. "They're rare for this time of year."

Other birds seen at this time of year include starlings, cardinals, finches, sparrows, mocking birds and woodpeckers.

Perhaps two persons who envied these birds with their warm protective fur coats are the mailman and the paper boy who made their chilly morning rounds!

A statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary looks out from Our Lady of the Grotto on to smooth tiers of snow and cold, cold weather. The grotto adjoins Woodland Rd. near Mount Pocono.

Stroud Twp. firemen fight house fire in Pocono Twp.

STROUDSBURG — Stroud Township firemen were called Monday to a fire near Bartonsville, in Pocono Township, and fought the blaze despite jurisdiction.

Fire Chief Lester Rice said his company was called by men working at the site of the fire.

"The fire was at the old Wilbur Hay place and was a building that the workmen were tearing down to make way for the new truck terminal to be built on the property," Rice said.

The workmen, according to Rice, had started to burn the building but when the flames got high enough to endanger utility lines they pushed it over and when they did the building "really started to burn."

Stroud Township firemen used approximately 500 gallons of water on the fire. There were three trucks and 50 men at the scene.

Parked cars hinder snow removal

STROUDSBURG — The mounting problems of snow removal during severe snow build-ups could be alleviated by the combined cooperation of all local residents.

According to Harold Snyder, Stroudsburg, borough manager, the two common annoyances that trouble the removal of snow in the borough are when service stations and other businesses dump their snow into the streets and the parking of cars during plowing of snow.

The snow plow is not easy to maneuver between parked cars and requires a wide area for safety clearance. One or two parked cars prevent clearing snow from the adjacent three parking areas, explained Snyder.

An Ordinance is under consideration by the borough to provide for necessary regulation in the removal of snow. The council is studying existing ordinances from other municipalities, said Snyder.

Cooperation and courtesy is still emphasized, however, added Snyder.

Guard general 'well pleased' with army inspection

Sgt. First Class Clark Frailey, left, points out the 106 mm recoilless rifle to Brig. Gen. Nicholas Kefkalas, 28th Inf. Div. commander, second from right, Monday during the general's inspection of the East Stroudsburg National Guard unit. Looking on are Capt. Ronald Shick, local commander, second from right, and Sgt. First Class Raymond Corey.

EAST STROUDSBURG — "I am well pleased with my visit here tonight," Brig. Gen. Frank Townsend, assistant commander, 28th Inf. Div., said Monday night after inspecting Co. C Pennsylvania National Guard in East Stroudsburg.

The general's visit was his first in Monroe County on an official visit. He had been here last October accompanying another Army officer who was making an inspection.

"I came here tonight to make an Annual Command Inspection in place of the Division Commander, who could not make it," Gen. Townsend said.

In an informal talk after the inspection, Gen. Townsend praised the local unit and all national guardsmen in north-eastern Pennsylvania.

"While inspecting the men I ask questions relating to their civilian job and how it ties in with their military job. The men gave me intelligent answers," Gen. Townsend said.

"One of the things that stick out in my mind is the fact that only two of the men I spoke to were 'drop-outs,'" he said.

The inspection covers, in addition to the personnel, administrative records, training plans, training facilities, and the facility itself.

A member of the inspecting team pointed out that the local unit was the first unit in the state to receive the light recovery vehicle.

The vehicle is made in the states and costs approximately $77,000.

In civilian life Gen. Townsend is a Wilkes-Barre attorney.

Super Bowl for collegians?

NCAA-AAU feud flares again

NEW YORK (AP) — The long-simmering AAU-NCAA feud over control of amateur athletics flared again Monday when the U.S. Track and Field Federation threatened to take legal action if the AAU suspended competitors in an invitation to meet planned next month.

"We are ready to challenge the monopolistic measures of the AAU in court and get proper redress if necessary," said Father W. H. Crowley, president of the USTFF, which is vying with the AAU over control of track and field events.

Father Crowley said that the USTFF would not ask AAU sanction of the Madison Square Garden scheduled Feb. 8.

Among the athletes slated to compete are Jim Ryan, world record holder in the mile; Bob Seagren, indoor pole vault record holder, and Gerry Lindgren, three-time NCAA cross-country champion.

There was no indication that the AAU would take action although in the past it has demanded that athletes get AAU sanction in meets with open competitors.

Earlier, the National Collegiate Athletic Association said it was considering a college Super Bowl to compete with the pros.

"This is just one of the several proposals submitted," Paul Brechler, commissioner of the Western Athletic Conference, said Monday after the first meeting of the nine-man NCAA committee named a year ago to study the feasibility of a college football championship playoff.

Workable plan
"Our purpose is to find out if there is a workable plan and, if so, to submit it to the convention a year from now. If it's found impractical, that's the report we'll make."

If a playoff plan is devised and accepted, Brechler, chairman of the committee said, it could be put into effect the fall of 1969.

Brechler denied that escalating television monies were a factor in the NCAA's playoff interest but added:

"We have to be practical. We know there would be television considerations. I have heard $10 million mentioned, but I wouldn't think of estimating what such games might be worth."

Within framework
One of the questions of the proposed plan for picking an official college grid champion is whether the playoffs could be held within the framework of the present bowl games.

"One proposal is that we hold the two semifinal games on Jan. 1 at two of the bowls, alternating them each year, and then have the final game a week later," Brechler said. Some already have dubbed the title game the NCAA's Super Bowl.

"Other suggestions are that we hold the playoffs the first three weeks in December and have them over before New Year's," Brechler added. "But some insist this would take the lustre off the bowls."

'68 punt return rule
Jack Curtice, athletic director of the University of California at Santa Barbara and secretary of the coaches' rules committee, reported that coaches were in favor of going back to the 1958 punt return rule, permitting all players to go down field after the snap, and also anxious to retain the present free substitution rule.

ABL holds 1st all-star tilt tonight

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Coaches Jim Pollard and Babe McCarthy, who have captured the early inside tracks in their divisions, match East and West teams here Tuesday night in the first American Basketball Association All-Star game.

More than 12,000 tickets have been sold for the game which will be played in the 14,900-seat Hinkle Fieldhouse at Butler University. The game will be televised in color to the league's other 10 cities, plus New York and Los Angeles.

Pollard is best known for his All-Pro days with Minneapolis when he teamed with ABA Commissioner George Mikan to lead the Lakers to six championships in the National Basketball Association.

McCarthy earned his name in coaching by directing Mississippi State to four Southeastern Conference titles and three straight from 1961 to 1963.

Pollard has his Minnesota Muskies leading the Eastern Division, and McCarthy's New Orleans Buccaneers are heading the Western Division in the ABA.

Both coaches will be able to count on some of their own stars.

McCarthy will have four players—center Red Robbins, forward Doug Moe and guards Larry Brown and Jim Jones. Pollard will have three Muskies—center Mel Daniels, guard Don Freeman and forward Les Hunter.

Wolman gets 2nd 15-day extension

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jerry Wolman, multimillionaire real estate developer and owner of the Philadelphia Eagles in the National Football League, was granted Monday his second 15-day extension to detail his assets and liabilities.

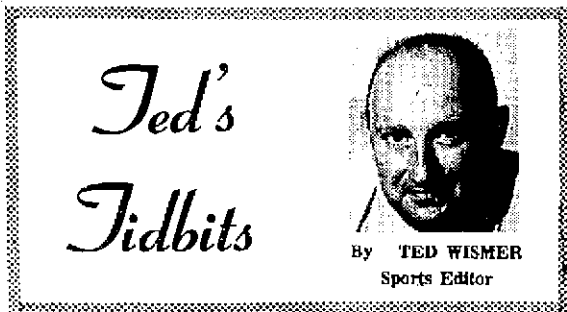

Wolman originally filed in U. S. District Court Dec. 13 papers in which he hopes to stave off an order of bankruptcy. At the time, he filed only a summary of assets listed at $92.3 million and liabilities of $85.7 million.

The referee in bankruptcy, Joseph O. Kaiser, gave Wolman until Jan. 8 to submit a statement of assets, schedules of assets and liabilities and statement of executory contracts.

Acknowledging he was unable to pay his debts as they mature, Wolman will offer a plan to satisfy his creditors. The arrangement would be subject to approval to a majority of the creditors and Kaiser.

Wolman listed 280 creditors originally, but did not show their individual claims. Since then, the American National Bank of Maryland filed a petition seeking permission to foreclose on a mortgage of $10.5 million on Georgian Towers, an apartment house under construction in Silver Spring.

Similar court petitions were filed by other creditors.

Ted's Tidbits

By TED WISMER
Sports Editor

"We were fortunate that they weren't as strong in the upper weights as they were in the lower ones."

That was Red Witman's opening remark when he looked back to ESSC's 20-11 victory over Oswego State Saturday.

Looking ahead Witman said "Bloomsburg (the Warrior's next opponent on Jan. 17) is a lot tougher than Oswego and may even have better balance than us."

Several fans thought that since the first semester ends Jan. 16, the Warriors would be able to use some boys that were forced to sit out the first. But according to Witman these boys won't be available until the second semester which doesn't start until the following week.

Looking ahead to the Huskies Witman feels that he must win at 115, 130, 137, 145, 177 and heavyweight if ESSC is to extend its winning streak to 23 straight.

It appears that sophomore sensation Dan Rossi will remain at 152 pounds for the remainder of the season. Bloomsburg has a standout at this weight in Joe Gerst but Witman feels Rossi has an excellent chance of winning. Gerst has been plagued by injuries throughout his career and has never reached his potential.

Besides praising the job done by Rossi, Witman also lauded the performances of John Pizer (160) and Bob Devore (188), two more sophomores. Pizer did not have a particular outstanding season last year for the frosh as he was forced to wrestle out of his weight class most of the season. But Saturday Pizer came through with "the best match he's ever wrestled in his life" and turned the tide in the Warriors' favor.

Outlook on Ball State
Several people have asked us about Ball State of Indiana which will wrestle ESSC March 5 in Koehler Field House. This match will follow the PSCC championships and be ESSC's last appearance before the NCAA tournament March 21-23 at Penn State.

The Cardinals have only three lettermen returning from last year's squad (2-7) but have six experienced junior college performers.

On its Eastern swing Ball State will also take on Waynesburg, St. Francis of Pennsylvania and Army.

On paper the heavyweight match will be a battle of giants. ESSC has its own giant in 240-pound sophomore Rich Schumacher while the Ball State heavy is John Dechant, a 6-3, 240-pound senior.

Off to good start
ESSC's Bill Stoltz never saw the 500-yard freestyle until Saturday so coach Denny Douds was ready to concede this event to New Paltz.

But when the race was over Stoltz was the first across the finish line in a time of 6:29.2. Since this was the first meet in the new pool, Stoltz has the distinction of setting a pool record in a race he was swimming for the first time.

In title race
Pocono Mountain can go a long way towards winning the Lehigh - Northampton League's Southern Division with a win at Salisbury tonight.

At the same time East Stroudsburg can also jump into the pennant chase with a win at home over Hellertown. The Cavaliers defeated Pen Argyl by four points at home in their only league test while last Friday the Panthers edged the Knights by one point on the former's floor.

The top wrestling attraction this week occurs Thursday night at Stroudsburg where the Mounties (2-0 in league action) take on Emmaus. The Hornets were expected to be in the race but lost to Northampton last week. S-burg humiliated Northampton in late December.

Oliva weds

Francis fined additional $200

MONTREAL (AP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, handed General Manager Coach Emile Francis of the New York Rangers an additional $200 fine Monday for an infraction which occurred in Madison Square Garden Dec. 30.

Francis took to the ice during a game against the Chicago Black Hawks in pursuit of referee Bill Friday to protest a judgment call by the official. By leaving the bench and stepping on the ice, Francis incurred an automatic $50 levy, bringing his total assessment for his journey to $250.

The incident occurred near the end of the game when Chicago defenseman Doug Jarrold fell on the puck in the Hawks' goal crease after goaltender Dennis DeJordy was caught out of position and was unable to get back in time to prevent a goal.

Francis claimed a penalty shot should have been awarded his club.

NFL union won't picket

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — President Mike Pyle said Monday the new labor union formed by the National Football League Players Association has no plans to throw picket lines around the stadiums.

But Pyle, defensive lineman for the Chicago Bears, said that in collective bargaining with the club owners, the union "will not rule out any means to achieve our objectives."

The statement was made at a news conference attended by players from all 16 NFL teams. They announced Sunday they had formed the American Federation of Professional Athletes within the Teamsters Union.

Attorney Dan Shulman of Chicago, who was retained as chief negotiator for the union, said it had no desire to negotiate individual salaries.

But he added that there are many grievances to be thrashed out with the club owners.

One of these, he said, is the matter of minimum salaries, "which are too low." Another is the player pension plan, "which is not comparable to the one baseball has going."

Francis fined additional $200

MONTREAL (AP) — Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, handed General Manager Coach Emile Francis of the New York Rangers an additional $200 fine Monday for an infraction which occurred in Madison Square Garden Dec. 30.

Francis took to the ice during a game against the Chicago Black Hawks in pursuit of referee Bill Friday to protest a judgment call by the official. By leaving the bench and stepping on the ice, Francis incurred an automatic $50 levy, bringing his total assessment for his journey to $250.

The incident occurred near the end of the game when Chicago defenseman Doug Jarrett fell on the puck in the Hawks' goal crease after goaltender Dennis Dejordi was caught out of position and was unable to get back in time to prevent a goal.

Francis claimed a penalty shot should have been awarded his club.

JIM MURRAY

Crack golfer

Sometimes it must seem to the rest of the world that what makes a crack golfer is not a gleaming set of Spaldings, a straight left arm, the temperament of a guy who wouldn't change expression if you roasted canaries in front of him, but what makes a golfer is earthquakes, smog, irrigated vegetables, traffic jams, slide areas and Golden Gate fog.

A great player may occasionally crop up in places like Ligonier, Pa., Columbus, O., or the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, but the assembly line is in California. Run a finger down a line of finish in any top tournament and a half-dozen of the top 10 usually carry California drivers' licenses.

They came out in the post-war era like samples out of a potter's kiln. Gene Littler, Ken Venturi, Bill Casper, Bobby Rosburg, Then, Al Geiberger, Tony Lema, Phil Rodgers. "They're not born," a Floridian grumbled, "they're found in a sand trap." Only Texas could even pretend to keep pace.

They were, by and large, clean-cut, handsome and young collegians, a far cry from the wire-beared ex-caddies who had dominated golf. Sometimes, they seemed a bit spoiled by it all. California golfers are like California horses — they run best when well ahead," was the word. "They're all right in the fairway, but put them behind a tree and watch them cry." Nevertheless, they knocked off major tournaments from collegiate to the British Open. They did their crying in air-conditioned Cadillacs.

One of the best of them was Keith Thomas Jacobs. Tommy wasn't born in a sand trap but he learned how to play out of one as soon as they took down the play pen. Dad (the late Keith Sr.) owned a golf course (Montebello) and Tommy's earliest playmates were not kids with their caps on backwards but Lloyd Mangrum, Marty Furgel, Paul Runyan — the certified giants of the grand old game. He went to the semi-finals of the National Amateur where it took a New York State Supreme Court justice 36 holes to eliminate this curly-haired 16-year-old kid.

Littler, Casper, Venturi, Rosburg, Geiberger all went on to win their major championships. Casper left the largest footprints in the sand traps of time but Tommy Jacobs always seemed to be one putt or one 9-iron away from greatness.

Nobody hit the ball any purer. Nobody ever read a green any better. The drives were straight. Handsome as a collar ad, popular and heady, Tommy was of the elite of Golf — the Ryder Cup team, a multiple tour winner (four victories) and no worse than 3-to-1 in any tournament he entered. He played the tight courses best because his game was as compact as he was (5-10, 160 pounds).

Golf is a game where a coming player usually shoots off little bursts of incandescence to show what later will become a steady glow with maturity. Only three players ever shot 64 in a National Open — the little-known nor long-remembered Lee Mackey Jr. in 1950, a youngster named Rives McBee in 1955. Mackey followed his 64 with an 81.

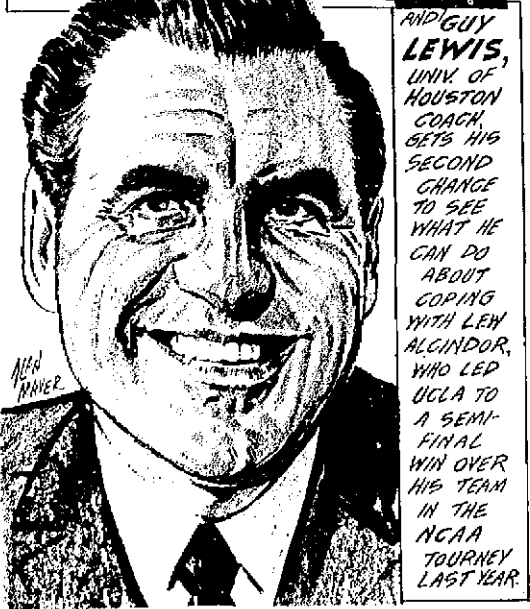

Only Tommy Jacobs shot 64 in an Open when the temperature hovered in the lows 100s and the humidity left a trail of salt from tee to green. Only Tommy Jacobs finished second in play so slow he almost turned to a pillar of salt. It was the only tournament where sober players staggered up to their shots and Tommy might yet have won if he didn't gulp a vat of iced tea on one tee and finished the round out with stomach cramps they would time if they occurred in an obstetrics office.

In 1966, Tommy finished second in the Masters, beaten only two shots in a playoff with Jack Nicklaus. In 1967, he suffered a bereavement with the death of his father.

He stood on a tee at the Southern California Open championship at Los Coyotes this week and took a long, searching look down 1968's fairway. "It will be funny to look over at the first tee at tournaments and not see Dad but I think he would agree 1968 is a crossroads year for me. This year I want that major championship," he said. This year, he wants full partnership with the glittering set of post-war golfers who took their clubs east of the Tehachapis and south of the Smokies to show the country that even lotus land players are not afraid of trees and creeks — or even the wind off the Firth of Forth.

In Buck Hill races

Hartman team enters 13

STROUDSBURG — The Hartman Racing Team will send 13 drivers — seven men and six women — into the Buck Hill Snowmobile Championships at the Buck Hill Family Ski Area Jan. 13-14.

Representing Hartman's of Minisink Hills will be Clyde Hallett, Roger Hartman, Lester Lits, Edward Treible, Kenny Alspach, George DeWitt, Richard Kane, Delores Hartman, Phyllis Hartman, Nona Treible, Evelyn Lits, Doty Eidenberger and Peggy Lits.

The Hartman's racing entourage will be among 130 entries in Saturday and Sunday's snowmobile classic at Buck Hill's two-mile obstacle course.

It was also announced that Buck Hill will enter "three chauffeurs" in the two-day event. They are Jerry Ober, Howard Schafer and Lorree Guthrie.

Men's and women's classes will highlight the 11 contests scheduled by Harry Drennan, racing director and winter sports manager at Buck Hill.

Drennan announced that officials have been named to run the championships. Heading the list is John G. Horsman, general manager and president of Buck Hill Falls Inn, who will serve as host chairman. Other officials are Mrs. Mae Tippet, race secretary; Blaine Siglin, starter; Robert Uguccioni, announcer; Joe Wile, timer; Al Wilkinson, scorer;

Joe Paterno speaker at NFF dinner

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. — Joe Paterno, head football coach at Penn State, will be the principal speaker at the annual scholar athlete dinner of the Lehigh Valley Chapter, National Football Foundation. The affair will be held Monday, Jan. 28, in the Phillipsburg Elks.

After a 5-5 record in 1966, his rookie season as a head coach, Paterno guided Penn State to a banner year last fall — a 8-2 won-lost mark, the Eastern championship, tenth place in the national ranking, and a berth in the Gator Bowl.

His charges played to a 14-14 tie against Florida State in the bowl classic last Dec. 30.

It was a year that reflected the kind of excellence with which Paterno has been associated since he became involved in coaching 18 years ago.

As the late Stanley Woodward once wrote of Paterno: "He can't run and he can't pass. All he can do is think — and win!"

Woodward wrote those lines when Paterno was a thin-legged senior quarterback at Brown in 1949. And another writer produced an updated version this season: "Joe Paterno's middle initial is 'V' and the 'V' could stand for only one thing — victory."

Paterno served as an assistant coach under Rip Engle throughout Engle's highly successful career at Penn State from 1950 to 1965. During that period, he achieved national recognition for his development of such great quarterbacks as All-America Richie Lucas, Milt Plum, Al Jacks, Tony Radus, Dick Hoak, Galen Hall and Pete Liske.

He assumed the head coaching duties in 1966 upon Engle's retirement after serving two seasons with the title of associate coach. Up until last season he was the best known assistant coach in the East, if not the nation, and he is probably the first person ever to hold the title of associate coach.

When Paterno decided to accept the invitation to assist his college coach at Penn State, it was to be just a temporary move. He had planned to enter law school, or perhaps even politics, but once he came to Penn State, he dismissed any thoughts of leaving.

Leopards indoor track squad set for opener

EASTON — Lafayette's indoor track team opens its first formal season with competition in the Knights of Columbus Games in Boston, Mass. on Saturday, Jan. 13.

This is the first year for an extensive program for indoor track at Lafayette. Previously, competition had been limited to participation by relay teams representing the college.

This year the team will compete in nine meets.

Both Jon Barnes, Lafayette's record-holding middle distance runner from Branford, Conn., and the Lafayette mile-relay team, will compete in the K. of C. Games at Boston. Barnes will run in either the invitational 880-yard run or the 1,000-yard invitational.

Coach Bill Donahue has three lettermen in addition to Barnes returning this season. All four were members of the Lafayette mile relay team which set the school record of 3:23.8 last year.

The other three are Henry Galpin of Martinsville, N. J., Bill Flis of North Plainfield, N. J., and Ed Reibman of Easton.

Barnes last year set the Lafayette record for the 1,000-yard run with a clocking of 2:11.3.

Donahue is impressed with the pre-season performances of sophomore Mike Beatty of Norwalk, Conn. Beatty is a possible starter on the mile relay team.

Galpin will also head the sprinters with Flis and Reibman and Barnes will be supported in the middle distance events by Jim Crowder of Metuchen, N. J.

Senior Phil Rosenzweig of Freeport, N. Y., and Terry Downey of Vineland, N. J., will carry Lafayette hopes in the weights and Clem Hergenhan of Nutley, N. J., leads the jumping corps.

Two sophomores Al Dambrauskas of Piscataway, N. J., and John Pierce of Northvale, N. J., are also strong possibilities in the jumping events and Dambrauskas is an outstanding hurdler.

The remaining schedule: Jan. 25, Wanamaker Millrose Games, New York City; Jan. 27, dual meet at East Stroudsburg State; Feb. 2, Knights of Columbus Games, New York City; Feb. 3, Philadelphia Inquirer Games; Feb. 9, U. S. Track and Field Federation Invitational, New York City.

Jumps from 13th to 1st place

NEW YORK (AP) — John Rinka, Kenyon's 5-foot-9 guard, might not be able to jump as high as most college basketball players, but he certainly made a giant leap in the small-college scoring race, National Collegiate Sports Services statistics showed Friday.

Scoring 85 points in two games last week, Rinka zoomed from 13th to first with a 34.7-point average. He replaced Wayne Chamberlain of Babson, who scored 35 points in two games and plummeted from 37 points a game to 27.3.

Norfolk State has averaged the most points, 116.4, and Ashland, Ohio, has allowed the fewest, 37.8.

Lafayette cagers play two games

EASTON — Four of Lafayette College's five winter athletic teams will be in action this coming week after nearly a month of inactivity for some of them.

Because of semester examinations and Christmas vacation, only the Lafayette basketball team has seen much action as of late.

The Leopards cagers will see action twice again this coming week, facing American University at Washington, D. C. on Wednesday, Jan. 9, and hosting Gettysburg 8:15 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 13. Both games are Middle Atlantic Conference contests.

The Gettysburg basketball game will be the first home game for the Leopards since their 63-60 loss to Rider on Dec. 16.

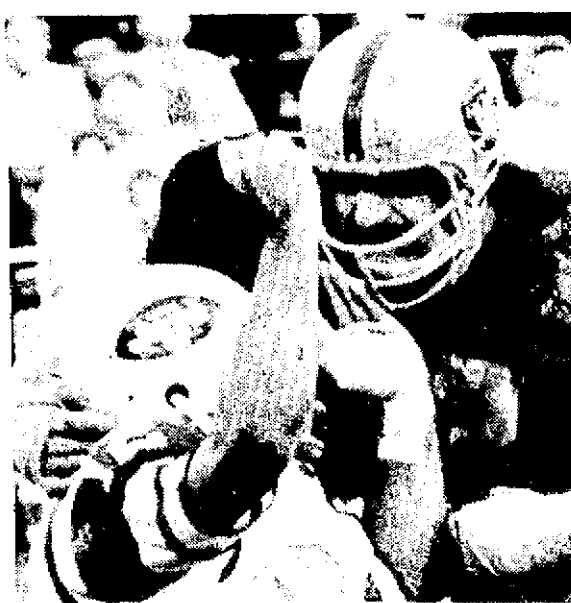

Two other Lafayette teams have home contests — the swimming team hosting Delaware in the Alumni Gymnasium pool at 2:30 on Saturday, Jan. 13, and the wrestling team facing Colgate at 2 p.m. in the Gymnasium, also on Jan. 13.

Both the swimmers and wrestlers are seeing action for the first time since Dec. 9 and both are seeking their first victories after suffering two straight losses.

The varsity track team will open its nine-meet 1967-68 schedule with competition in the Boston Knights of Columbus Games in Boston, Mass. on Jan. 13.

Lafayette's record-holding middle distance runner, Jon Barnes of Branford, Conn., will run in either the invitational 880-yard run or 1,000-yard invitational at the K. of C. Games. The Lafayette mile relay team will also compete in the Games.

Ben Davidson, 265-pound, 6'7" defensive end of the Oakland Raiders, appears to be quite a gentle man as he twirls his moustache during a recent press conference. But on the field, he's an animal. At top, he's pictured attacking Jets' quarterback Joe Namath in a Dec. 8, 1967 game. Davidson figures to be a big man when Oakland takes on the Green Bay Packers in the Super Bowl at Miami, Fla., Sunday.

Almost 2 out of 3 new homeowners have flameless electric water heaters. Don't you wish you did?

Naturally, the owner of a new home wants to be sure he's getting top value for his money. That's the big reason for the growing popularity of flameless electric water heaters. They supply plenty of really hot water for every household use. A Quick Recovery model can be tucked away anywhere in the house. Electric water heaters are clean and quiet, safe and trouble-free. And remember, you can rely on them for years of convenient service. Give your home the "plus" of a modern, flameless electric water heater. When you install it, you take a big step toward the dependability and convenience of Gold Medallion living.

Crack golfer

Sometimes it must seem to the rest of the world that what makes a crack golfer is not a gleaming set of Spaldings, a straight left arm, the temperament of a guy who wouldn't change expression if you roasted canaries in front of him, but what makes a golfer is earthquakes, smog, irrigated vegetables, traffic jams, slide areas and Golden Gate fog.

A great player may occasionally crop up in places like Ligonier, Pa., Columbus, O., or the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, but the assembly line is in California. Run a finger down a line of finish in any top tournament and a half-dozen of the top 10 usually carry California drivers' licenses.

They came out in the post-war era like samples out of a potter's kiln. Gene Littler, Ken Venturi, Bill Casper, Bobby Rosburg. Then, Al Geiberger, Tony Lema, Phil Rodgers. "They're not born," a Floridian grumbled, "they're found in a sand trap." Only Texas could even pretend to keep pace.

They were, by and large, clean-cut, handsome and young collegians, a far cry from the wire-beared ex-caddies who had dominated golf. Sometimes, they seemed a bit spoiled by it all. California golfers are like California horses — they run best when well ahead," was the word. "They're all right in the fairway, but put them behind a tree and watch them cry." Nevertheless, they knocked off major tournaments from collegiate to the British Open. They did their crying in air-conditioned Cadillacs.

One of the best of them was Keith Thomas Jacobs. Tommy wasn't born in a sand trap but he learned how to play out of one as soon as they took down the play pen. Dad (the late Keith Sr.) owned a golf course (Montebello) and Tommy's earliest playmates were not kids with their caps on backwards but Lloyd Mangrum, Marty Furgol, Paul Runyan — the certified giants of the grand old game. He went to the semi-finals of the National Amateur where it took a New York State Supreme Court justice 36 holes to eliminate this curly-haired 16-year-old kid.

Littler, Casper, Venturi, Rosburg, Geiberger all went on to win their major championships. Casper left the largest footprints in the sand traps of time but Tommy Jacobs always seemed to be one putt or one 9-iron away from greatness.

Nobody hit the ball any purer. Nobody ever read a green any better. The drives were straight. Handsome as a collar ad, popular and heady, Tommy was of the elite of Golf — the Ryder Cup team, a multiple tour winner (four victories) and no worse than 3-to-1 in any tournament he entered. He played the tight courses best because his game was as compact as he was (5-10, 160 pounds).

Golf is a game where a coming player usually shoots off little bursts of incandescence to show what later will become a steady glow with maturity. Only three players ever shot 64 in a National Open — the little-known nor long-remembered Lee Mackey Jr. in 1950, a youngster named Rives McBee in 1965. Mackey followed his 64 with an 81.

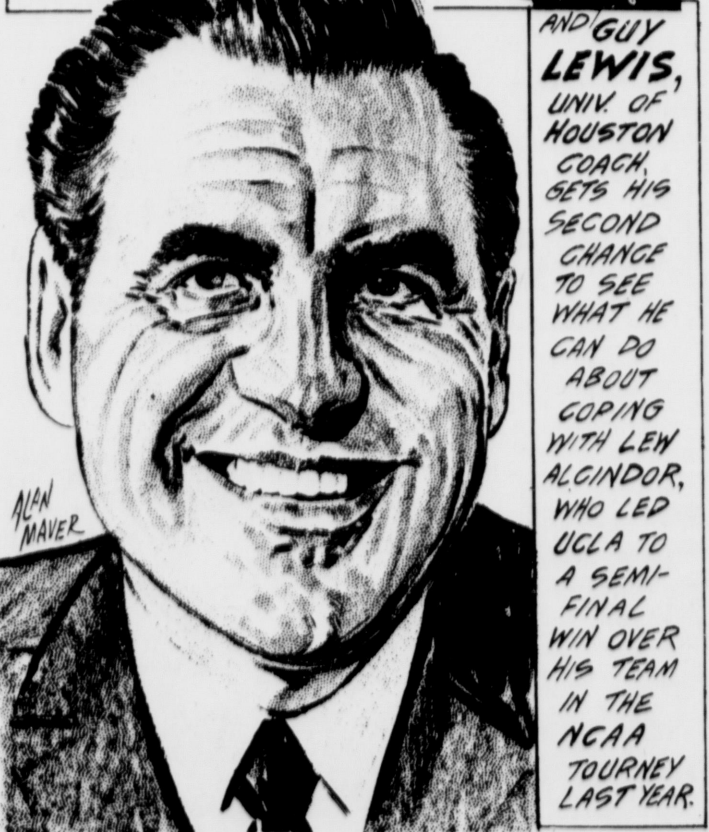

Only Tommy Jacobs shot 64 in an Open when the temperature hovered in the lows 100s and the humidity left a trail of salt from tee to green. Only Tommy Jacobs finished second in play so slow he almost turned to a pillar of salt. It was the only tournament where sober players staggered up to their shots and Tommy might yet have won if he didn't gulp a vat of iced tea on one tee and finished the round out with stomach cramps they would time if they occurred in an obstetrics office.

In 1966, Tommy finished second in the Masters, beaten only two shots in a playoff with Jack Nicklaus. In 1967, he suffered a bereavement with the death of his father.

He stood on a tee at the Southern California Open championship at Los Coyotes this week and took a long, searching look down 1968's fairway. "It will be funny to look over at the first tee at tournaments and not see Dad but I think he would agree 1968 is a crossroads year for me. This year I want that major championship," he said. This year, he wants full partnership with the glittering set of post-war golfers who took their clubs east of the Tehachapis and south of the Smokies to show the country that even lotus land players are not afraid of trees and creeks — or even the wind off the Firth of Forth.

In Buck Hill races

Hartman team enters 13

STRODSBURG — The Hartman Racing Team will send 13 drivers — seven men and six women — into the Buck Hill Snowmobile Championships at the Buck Hill Family Ski Area Jan. 13-14.

Representing Hartman's of Minisink Hills will be Clyde Hallett, Roger Hartman, Lester Litts, Edward Treible, Kenny Alspach, George DeWitt, Richard Kane, Delores Hartman, Phyllis Hartman, Nona Treible, Evelyn Litts, Doty Eilenberger and Peggy Litts.

The Hartman's racing entourage will be among 130 entries in Saturday and Sunday's snowmobile classic at Buck Hill's two-mile obstacle course.

It was also announced that Buck Hill will enter "three chauffeurs" in the two-day event. They are Jerry Ober, Howard Schafer and Lorree Guthrie.

Men's and women's classes will highlight the 11 contests scheduled by Harry Drennan, racing director and winter sports manager at Buck Hill.

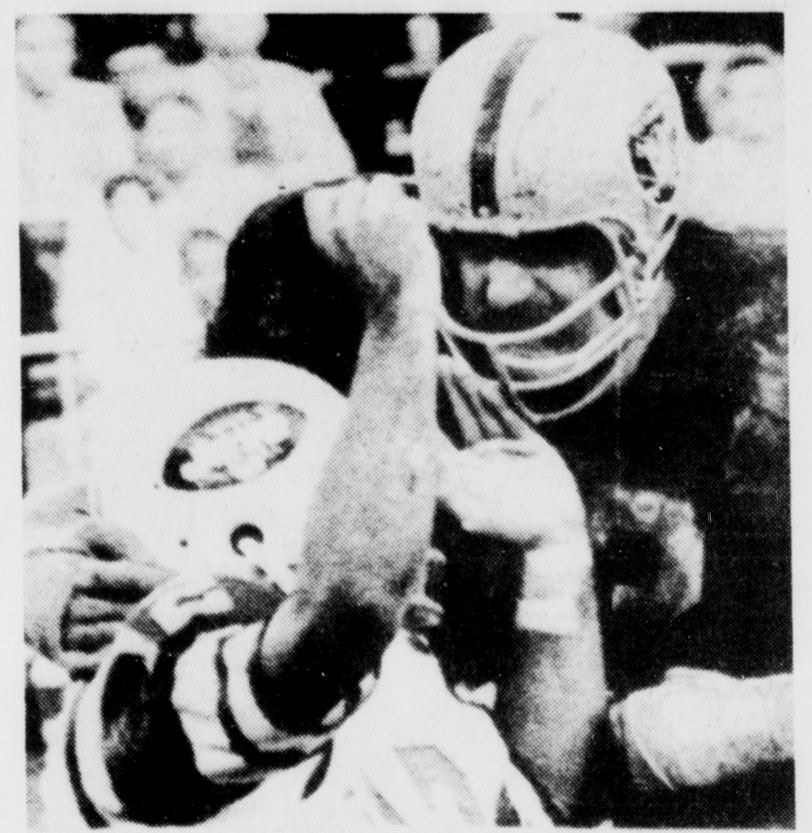

Drennan announced that officials have been named to run the championships. Heading the list is John G. Horsman, general manager and president of Buck Hill Falls Inn, who will serve as host chairman. Other officials are Mrs. Mae Tippett, race secretary; Blaine Siglin, starter; Robert Ugucioni, announcer; Joe Wile, timer; Al Wilkinson, scorer;

Marshall Reese, Jerry Drennan and Ron Sparrow, lap checkers; Dave Blitz, head marshal, and Charles Ayers, spectators policing.

The Barrett Twp. firemen and the Barrett Ambulance Assn. and Barrett Twp. Chief of Police William Everett and Buck Hill Falls Chief of Police Harry Campbell will assist in the program.

Drennan said last night, "Everything is ready. We have a record field, ideal snow conditions and perfect temperatures. Now it is up to drivers to break records over what we feel is a tough course."

Registrations close Friday, Jan. 12, at 12 noon. Drennan may be contacted at Buck Hill Falls for further information.

Joe Paterno speaker at NFF dinner

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. — Joe Paterno, head football coach at Penn State, will be the principal speaker at the annual scholar athlete dinner of the Lehigh Valley Chapter, National Football Foundation. The affair will be held Monday, Jan. 29, in the Phillipsburg Elks.

After a 5-5 record in 1966, his rookie season as a head coach, Paterno guided Penn State to a banner year last fall — a 8-2 won-lost mark, the Eastern championship, tenth place in the national ranking, and a berth in the Gator Bowl.

His charges played to a 14-14 tie against Florida State in the bowl classic last Dec. 30.

It was a year that reflected the kind of excellence with which Paterno has been associated since he became involved in coaching 18 years ago.

As the late Stanley Woodward once wrote of Paterno: "He can't run and he can't pass. All he can do is think — and win!"

Woodward wrote those lines when Paterno was a thin-legged senior quarterback at Brown in 1949. And another writer produced an updated version this season: "Joe Paterno's middle initial is 'V' and the 'V' could stand for only one thing — victory."

Paterno served as an assistant coach under Rip Engle throughout Engle's highly successful career at Penn State from 1950 to 1965. During that period, he achieved national recognition for his development of such great quarterbacks as All-America Richie Lucas, Milt Plum, Al Jacks, Tony Rados, Dick Hoak, Galen Hall and Pete Liske.

He assumed the head coaching duties in 1966 upon Engle's retirement after serving two seasons with the title of associate coach. Up until last season he was the best known assistant coach in the East, if not the nation, and he is probably the first person ever to hold the title of associate coach.

When Paterno decided to accept the invitation to assist his college coach at Penn State, it was to be just a temporary move. He had planned to enter law school, or perhaps even politics, but once he came to Penn State, he dismissed any thoughts of leaving.

Leopards indoor track squad set for opener

EASTON — Lafayette's indoor track team opens its first formal season with competition in the Knights of Columbus Games in Boston, Mass. on Saturday, Jan. 13.

This is the first year for an extensive program for indoor track at Lafayette. Previously, competition had been limited to participation by relay teams representing the college.

This year the team will compete in nine meets.

Both Jon Barnes, Lafayette's record - holding middle distance runner from Branford, Conn., and the Lafayette mile-relay team, will compete in the K. of C. Games at Boston. Barnes will run in either the invitational 880-yard run or the 1,000-yard invitational.

Coach Bill Donahue has three lettermen in addition to Barnes returning this season. All four were members of the Lafayette mile relay team which set the school record of 3:23.8 last year.

The other three are Henry Galpin of Martinsville, N. J., Bill Flis of North Plainfield, N. J. and Ed Reibman of Easton.

Barnes last year set the Lafayette record for the 1,000-yard run with a clocking of 2:11.3.

Donahue is impressed with the pre-season performances of sophomore Mike Beatty of Norwalk, Conn. Beatty is a possible starter on the mile relay team.

Galpin will also head the sprinters with Flis and Reibman and Barnes will be supported in the middle distance events by Jim Crowover of Metuchen, N. J.

Senior Phil Rosenzweig of Freeport, N. Y. and Terry Downey of Vineland, N. J. will carry Lafayette hopes in the weights and Clem Hergenhan of Nutley, N. J. leads the jumping corps.

Two sophomores Al Dambrauskas of Piscataway, N. J. and John Pierce of Northvale, N. J., are also strong possibilities in the jumping events and Dambrauskas is an outstanding hurdler.

The remaining schedule: Jan. 25, Wanamaker Millrose Games, New York City; Jan. 27, dual meet at East Stroudsburg State; Feb. 2, Knights of Columbus Games, New York City; Feb. 3, Philadelphia Inquirer Games; Feb. 9, U. S. Track and Field Federation Invitational, New York City.

Feb. 16, New York Athletic Club Indoor Games; Feb. 24, Delaware Invitational, Newark, Del.; and March 9, IC4A Indoor Championships, New York City.

The bidding:

1 ♠ Pass Pass 3 ♦
Pass 3 NT

Opening lead — eight of spades.

In most deals, the defenders have much more to think about than declarer — because they don't see each other's hands and therefore have no precise idea of their combined strength.

The declarer, on the other hand, seeing dummy's cards as well as his own, is usually in a much better position to assess his strong and weak points, gauge his prospects, and take advantage of the exact knowledge he possesses and the opponents do not.

East had a problem of sorts when he won the spade lead with the king after declarer had followed low from dummy, but correctly decided there was no future in a spade continuation.

He therefore shifted to a low club, whereupon declarer became a deceased pigeon. South followed low, West winning a low club to the king. There was no possible recovery for South, whether or not he took the king; in either case, he would wind up losing a spade, three clubs and a diamond for down one.

Of course, East deserves at least some credit for recognizing the futility of a spade return at trick two. He hoped to find partner with club strength, despite declarer's club bid, and the hope materialized.

However, East should never have been given the opportunity to beat the contract. South made a fatal error when he ducked the spade lead in dummy. He was asking for trouble and he got it.

Both the bidding and the opening lead had marked East with the king of spades. It was surely unnecessary to protect the queen of spades by playing low from dummy.

There was other pressing business at hand. Dummy's establishment before declarer's weak spot in clubs could be exploited. Declarer should have gone up with the ace of spades at trick one and attacked diamonds at trick two. This method of play would have led to nine easy tricks.

Leaders of parties find new troubles in Monroe County

By GIL MURRAY
Record News Editor
STROUDSBURG — The reapportionment of Monroe County not only obliterated the county as a political entity but created some serious practical problems for the politicians.

The leaders of both parties are now struggling with such things as candidates, patronage and delegates to national conventions.

Before reapportionment all these items had been agreed upon by leaders of both parties and had been practice of long standing.

Then came new political boundaries and the ensuing problems — for both the voter and the professional politician.

A county which was once in a four-county congressional district, a three-county state senatorial district and a single-county state assembly district, was suddenly put on the political drafting board.

The county was put into a realigned and enlarged congressional district, two senatorial districts and two assembly districts.

For some odd reason, the new districts overwhelmingly favor either the Democrats or Republicans.

This makes it extremely difficult for the minority party to talk a qualified candidate into running against such odds.

The practical considerations of the realignment are just as numerous.

The most current problems revolve around how to select a state of delegates and alternates from the 15th District to national conventions.

Under the old four-county setup it was fairly simple. Each party in the 15th District is allocated two delegates and two alternates. These political plums were just passed from county to county.

One year, two counties would have the right to name a delegate and the other two an alternate and in four years the situation just reversed.

Now, at least for the Republicans, the old agreement among county chairmen is out the window.

The new district, while it contains more voters, has only three counties and it is not as simple to divide four convention seats.

Growing pains

Red Cross seeking local quarters

STROUDSBURG — "The Red Cross in Monroe County needs a decent home," W. C. G. Peterson, chapter chairman, told the group's board of directors recently.

"Our quarters are cramped and hardly large enough to hold a meeting," he said.

Peterson indicated that the only way the chapter will acquire such a home is through a bequest by an area resident.

"We ought to spread the word," he said. "People often leave their estates to worthwhile causes. Ours is certainly one of them."

He disclosed that recently some $10,000 was left to the Red Cross by a Monroe County man, but because the will did not specify that it go to the local chapter, it went directly to Red Cross national headquarters.

Miss Martha Nupp, regional Red Cross representative who was present at the meeting, explained that, legally, the money could go nowhere else.

Miss Nupp suggested that the chapter write a letter to all the lawyers in Monroe County to help prevent a similar occurrence in the future.

In other business at the meeting, it was disclosed that during the month of December, the chapter loaned $544 to families of servicemen who were in need, and received $257 in repayments from previous loans.

The directors agreed that, because of the chapter's limited budget, loan requests be more carefully screened and only the most essential needs — food, clothing and shelter — be furnished.

"We certainly should not take care of car payments," Peterson said.

Request for blood

While the meeting was in progress, a phone call was received for 10 pints of blood for an area resident who was due to undergo emergency surgery at the Allentown General Hospital.

The meeting was temporarily suspended while this request was expedited. Because of the chapter's number one donor rating with the Regional Blood Center in Wilkes-Barre, the patient's needs will be provided without charge for the blood.

Howard Popkin, chapter blood drive chairman, reported that Ronson Corp. had again exceeded quota in December, with a 150-pint donation.

It was also reported that the Disaster Committee, headed by Joseph DeRenzi, was called to the scene of a number of fires last month, but did not have to provide material assistance.

"In all cases," DeRenzi said, "the families were able to take care of themselves."

Monroe to share the remaining delegate and alternate. This sounds simple, but this year happened to be the quadrennial in which Monroe was entitled to a delegate.

However, after early indications that she did not want a delegateship for her county, Mrs. Shirley Lieberman, Northampton County chairman, has now indicated she will have a candidate for the post.

This leaves Monroe with only an alternate delegate and the situation could upset some carefully laid plans among Republican leaders in this county.

Before Mrs. Lieberman exercised her option on the delegate, Dr. Evan C. Reese, Monroe GOP chairman, let it be known that he would run as a delegate to the 1968 convention in Miami Beach.

This new arrangement could also upset the aspirations of some Republicans who planned on the old arrangement.

One of these could be James Joseph, a Stroudsburg stock broker, who indicated several years ago that he wanted to be a candidate for delegate to the GOP convention.

While the Republican problem has reached a more advanced stage, local Democrats will probably be faced with the same situation.

What this might do to break down the old system of having county chairmen and parties endorsing, or handpicking the delegates to convention.

A delegate is chosen by popular vote during a primary election. It just might turn out that some Republicans and Democrats are not satisfied with the manner in which the county chairmen are handling the situation.

This attitude could lead to unendorsed candidates entering elections.

Maybe this is the way it should be.

Leaders of parties find new troubles in Monroe County

By GIL MURRAY
Record News Editor
STROUDSBURG — The reapportionment of Monroe County not only obliterated the county as a political entity but created some serious practical problems for the politicians.

The leaders of both parties are now struggling with such things as candidates, patronage and delegates to national conventions.

Before reapportionment all these items had been agreed upon by leaders of both parties and had been practice of long standing.

Then came new political boundaries and the ensuing problems — for both the voter and the professional politician.

A county which was once in a four-county congressional district, a three-county state senatorial district and a single-county state assembly district, was suddenly put on the political drafting board.

Enlarged area
The county was put into a realigned and enlarged congressional district, two senatorial districts and two assembly districts. For some odd reason, the new districts overwhelmingly favor either the Democrats or Republicans.

This makes it extremely difficult for the minority party to talk a qualified candidate into running against such odds.

The practical considerations of the realignment are just as numerous.

The most current problems revolve around how to select a slate of delegates and alternates from the 15th District to national conventions.

Under the old four-county setup it was fairly simple. Each party in the 15th District is allocated two delegates and two alternates. These political plums were just passed from county to county.

One year, two counties would have the right to name a delegate and the other two an alternate and in four years the situation just reversed.

Now, at least for the Republicans, the old agreement among county chairmen is out the window.

The new district, while it contains more voters, has only three counties and it is not as simple to divide four convention seats.

Growing pains

Red Cross seeking local quarters

STROUDSBURG — "The Red Cross in Monroe County needs a decent home," W. C. G. Peterson, chapter chairman, told the group's board of directors recently.

"Our quarters are cramped and hardly large enough to hold a meeting," he said.

Peterson indicated that the only way the chapter will acquire such a home is through a bequest by an area resident.

"We ought to spread the word," he said. "People often leave their estates to worthwhile causes. Ours is certainly one of them."

He disclosed that recently some $40,000 was left to the Red Cross by a Monroe County resident. To complicate matters, Moulton Frantz, Lehigh County GOP chairman, the largest county in the district, has let it be known that he wants a delegate and alternate to come from Lehigh.

This leaves Northampton and

Monroe to share the remaining delegate and alternate. This sounds simple, but this year happened to be the quadrennial suspended while this request was expedited. Because of the chapter's number one donor rating with the Regional Blood Center in Wilkes-Barre, the patient's needs will be provided without charge for the blood.

Howard Popkin, chapter blood drive chairman, reported that Ronson Corp. had again exceeded quota in December, with a 159-pint donation.

It was also reported that the Disaster Committee, headed by Joseph DeRenzis, was called to the scene of a number of fires last month, but did not have to provide material assistance.

"In all cases," DeRenzis said, "the families were able to take care of themselves."

in repayments from previous loans.

The directors agreed that, because of the chapter's limited budget, loan requests be more carefully screened and only the most essential needs — food, clothing and shelter — be furnished.

"We certainly should not take care of car payments," Peterson said.

Request for blood
While the meeting was in progress, a phone call was received for 10 pints of blood for an area resident who was due to undergo emergency surgery at the Allentown General Hospital.

The meeting was temporarily suspended while this request was expedited. Because of the chapter's number one donor rating with the Regional Blood Center in Wilkes-Barre, the patient's needs will be provided without charge for the blood.

Howard Popkin, chapter blood drive chairman, reported that Ronson Corp. had again exceeded quota in December, with a 159-pint donation.

in which Monroe was entitled to a delegate.

However, after early indications that she did not want a delegateship for her county, Mrs. Shirley Lieberman, Northampton County chairman, has now indicated she will have a candidate for the post.

This leaves Monroe with only an alternate delegate and the situation could upset some carefully laid plans among Republican leaders in this county.

Before Mrs. Lieberman exercised her option on the delegate, Dr. Evan C. Reese, Monroe GOP chairman, let it be known that he would run as a delegate to the 1968 convention in Miami Beach.

This new arrangement could also upset the aspirations of some Republicans who planned on the old arrangement.

One of these could be James Joseph, a Stroudsburg stock

broker, who indicated several years ago that he wanted to be a candidate for delegate to the GOP convention.

While the Republican problem has reached a more advanced stage, local Democrats will probably be faced with the same situation.

What this might do is break down the old system of having county chairmen and parties endorsing, or handpicking the delegates to convention.

A delegate is chosen by popular vote during a primary election. It just might turn out that some Republicans and Democrats are not satisfied with the manner in which the county chairmen are handling the situation.

This attitude could lead to underelected candidates entering elections.

Maybe this is the way it should be.

Stroudsburg woman offers parts of body to science

By RICK METHOT
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — While the world focuses its attention on the historic heart-transplant operations in South Africa and California, Mary Dimmick, a secretary in the county Register and Recorder's office, has a special interest in the medical advances.

MRS. DONALD DIMMICK — aid to science

The attractive Mrs. Dimmick has backed these convictions by willingly offering various organs of her body to medical science in the hope of aiding someone in need, and looks to the day when it may be possible to donate the human heart for future transplants.

At present, as in the cases in Capetown and Palo Alto, a heart must be made available almost immediately and it must be the right type heart for a successful transplant to be a possibility.

Long before the heart-transplants were making news, Mrs. Dimmick had already donated her eyes to the Eastern Eye Bank.

She said she learned of the eye bank through a program sponsored by the Lions Club in a newspaper story in 1961.

Mrs. Dimmick said she then pledged her eyes to the North-eastern Pennsylvania Lions' Eye Bank, Inc. in Easton.

"Anyone interested in a donation can contact the local Lions Club," she said.

As in the case of each of her three donations, Mrs. Dimmick carries a card authorizing the removal of the parts after death by the attending physician by the next of kin.

"Eye Banks" have become the most well-known of the spare parts depositories and Mrs. Dimmick adds that perfect vision is not a requisite for donation.

In eye banks, the cornea, the eye's outer covering, is usually kept unfrozen as living tissue.

In cases that require the entire cornea for a transplant, the operation must take place within 24 hours and must be removed from the donor's body as rapidly as possible within the same amount of time.

Valuable part
In operations that would only utilize a portion of the valuable eye membrane, the tissue can be kept usable for a longer period of time.

Mrs. Dimmick, the mother of two teenage daughters, has also pledged her ears to medicine following her death.

Actually the donation is for the temporal bones of the middle and inner ear portions including the hearing nerve and its central pathways from within the head. These are also removed immediately following death.

Mrs. Dimmick said she learned of the need for the human parts through a story in the Reader's Digest in 1964 and contacted the University of Chicago to find out how she might donate the ear sections.

The donation was finally made through the Eastern Temporal Bone Banks Center of Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore and sponsored by the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology and by the Deafness Research Foundation.

According to Mrs. Dimmick, she was told by the center her ears would not be useful as they were not defective. She added that ears for transplanting purposes must come from persons with defective hearing.

After her inquiry, Mrs. Dimmick said she forgot about the plan until a Christmas card was sent to her by the center saying her ears could be used for surgical purposes and asked if she still cared to donate.

Her third donation will be her pituitary glands to medicine.

The pituitaries of human beings are the only source of clinically active growth hormone, according to Dr. W. E. Latimer, Baltimore, who heads the National Pituitary Agency there.

Speaking of her pledges Mrs. Dimmick said, "If I could find someplace where my kidneys and heart could go I'd be very happy."

Mrs. Dimmick thinks there is a definite future in heart transplants and indicated that she would be more than willing to donate her heart if the need became known and an organization was set up to handle such donations in the future.

Hates waste
Asked for her reason to give of herself following death, Mrs. Dimmick said, "I hate waste," and added that if in any way her donations could help another it would be more than enough reward.

"Anything that can be used to help others, should be," she said and added with a laugh, "I suppose it's my Scottish ancestry" behind the dislike for waste.

She says it's common for people to ignore the need for human parts by saying their parts are defective, and "they would want them." According to Mrs. Dimmick it makes "no difference."

"You know, I think some people are afraid it might hurt," she laughed.

Six cents necessary for cards

STROUDSBURG — Postmaster Fred H. Rhodes of Stroudsburg, Monday reminded mailers that the postage rate for "unsealed greeting cards" is now six cents under the new higher postage rates effective Monday.

"We received over 1,000 greeting cards with less than six cents postage which requires the department to stamp 'postage due' to the addressee," Rhodes said.

Greeting cards, although unsealed, have jumped from four to six cents under the new rates, Rhodes explained.

Greeting cards include birthday, anniversary and get well cards. The cards are considered third-class mail; six cents for the first two ounces plus two cents for each additional ounce.

Communities aid colleges in growth

STROUDSBURG — Boyd Buckingham, director of development and public relations at Bloomsburg State College, spoke at the weekly meeting of the Stroudsburg Rotary Club on "State College Planning: Development, Why and How?"

Buckingham stated that the state college must have facilities for living, learning, recreation and service. These facilities must be expanded periodically to handle the increased college enrollment.

Community planning
Planning for the expansion programs cannot stop at the campus line but has to be coordinated with the local communities with their plans for adequate water, power, sewage, traffic, etc.

Jesse Flory introduced two new members: Jake Cummings Platt, East Stroudsburg Area School, and Walter Moor, Stroudsburg-Pocono Airport.

Stroudsburg woman offers parts of body to science

By RICK METHOT
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — While the world focuses its attention on the historic heart-transplant operations in South Africa and California, Mary Dimmick, a secretary in the county Register and Recorder's office, has a special interest in the medical advances.

Mrs. Dimmick, Maplewood Estates, and wife of Donald Dimmick, vice president of the First Stroudsburg National Bank, is a firm believer in the current "spare parts" era of medicine. Mrs. Dimmick has donated her eyes, ears and pituitary glands.

The attractive Mrs. Dimmick has backed these convictions by willingly offering various organs of her body to medical science in the hope of aiding someone in need, and looks to the day when it may be possible to donate the human heart for future transplants.

At present, as in the cases in Capetown and Palo Alto, a heart must be made available almost immediately and it must be the right type heart for a successful transplant to be a possibility.

Long before the heart-transplants were making news, Mrs. Dimmick had already donated her eyes to the Easton Eye Bank.

She said she learned of the eye bank through a program sponsored by the Lions Club in a newspaper story in 1961.

Mrs. Dimmick said she then pledged her eyes to the Northeastern Pennsylvania Lions' Eye Bank, Inc., in Easton.

"Anyone interested in a donation can contact the local Lions Club," she said.

As in the case of each of her three donations, Mrs. Dimmick carries a card authorizing the removal of the parts after death by the attending physician by the next of kin.

"Eye Banks" have become the most well-known of the spare parts depositories and Mrs. Dimmick adds that perfect vision is not a requisite for donation.

In eye banks, the cornea, the eye's outer covering, is usually kept unfrozen as living tissue.

In cases that require the entire cornea for a transplant, the operation must take place within 24 hours and must be removed from the donor's body as rapidly as possible within the same amount of time.

Valuable part
In operations that would only utilize a portion of the valuable eye membrane, the tissue can be kept usable for a longer period of time.

Mrs. Dimmick, the mother of two teenage daughters, has also pledged her ears to medicine following her death.

MRS. DONALD DIMMICK — aid to science

Actually the donation is for the temporal bones of the middle and inner ear portions including the hearing nerve and its central pathways from within the head. These are also removed immediately following death.

Mrs. Dimmick said she learned of the need for the human parts through a story in the Reader's Digest in 1964 and contacted the University of Chicago to find out how she might donate the ear sections.

The donation was finally made through the Eastern Temporal Bone Banks Center of Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore and sponsored by the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology and by the Deafness Research Foundation.

According to Mrs. Dimmick, she was told by the center her ears would not be useful as they were not defective. She added that ears for transplanting purposes must come from persons with defective hearing.

After her inquiry, Mrs. Dimmick said she forgot about the plan until a Christmas card was sent to her by the center saying her ears could be used for surgical purposes and asked if she still cared to donate.

Her third donation will be her pituitary glands to medicine. The pituitaries of human beings are the only source of clinically active growth hormone, according to Dr. W. E. Latimer, Baltimore, who heads the National Pituitary Agency there.

Speaking of her pledges Mrs. Dimmick said, "If I could find someplace where my kidneys and heart could go I'd be very happy."

Mrs. Dimmick thinks there is a definite future in heart transplants and indicated that she would be more than willing to donate her heart if the need became known and an organization was set up to handle such donations in the future.

Hates waste
Asked for her reason to give of herself following death, Mrs. Dimmick said, "I hate waste," and added that if in any way her donations could help another it would be more than enough reward.

"Anything that can be used to help others, should be," she said and added with a laugh, "I suppose it's my Scottish ancestry" behind the dislike for waste.

She says it's common for people to ignore the need for human parts by saying their parts are defective, and "they would want them." According to Mrs. Dimmick it makes "no difference."

"You know, I think some people are afraid it might hurt," she laughed.

Six cents necessary for cards

STROUDSBURG — Postmaster Fred H. Rhodes of Stroudsburg, Monday reminded mailers that the postage rate for "unsealed greeting cards" is now six cents under the new higher postage rates effective Monday.

"We received over 1,000 greeting cards with less than six cents postage which requires the department to stamp 'postage due' to the addressee," Rhodes said.

Greeting cards, although unsealed, have jumped from four to six cents under the new rates, Rhodes explained.

Greeting cards include birthday, anniversary and get well cards. The cards are considered third-class mail: six cents for the first two ounces plus two cents for each additional ounce.

Communities aid colleges in growth

STROUDSBURG — Boyd Buckingham, director of development and public relations at Bloomsburg State College, spoke at the weekly meeting of the Stroudsburg Rotary Club on "State College Planning, Development, Why and How?"

Buckingham stated that the state college must have facilities for living, learning, recreation and service. These facilities must be expanded periodically to handle the increased college enrollment.

Community planning
Planning for the expansion programs cannot stop at the campus line but has to be coordinated with the local communities with their plans for adequate water, power, sewage, traffic, etc.

Jesse Flory introduced two new members: Jake Cummings, East Stroudsburg Area School, and Walter Moore, Stroudsburg-Pocono Airport.

Cancer unit alerts smokers on national test next week

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Unit of the American Cancer Society has alerted local residents to the National Smoking Test, scheduled for Jan. 16, during a CBS News special.

During prime evening

Air Force opens careers for women

STROUDSBURG — An increased demand for the skills of women college graduates has been expressed by procurement officials of the United States Air Force.

More than 30 career areas have been opened to women in the officer corps, covering numerous jobs in the arts and sciences related to the global Aerospace program.

The many fields considered for men only now are open to women, such as space systems, geodetic, transportation, special investigations, civil aeronautical and electrical engineering, according to Major William Slabonic, Central Pennsylvania Recruiting Commander.

Sergeant Ralph Hillman is the Air Force recruiting representative in the Monroe County Area, and may be contacted at Stroudsburg Post Office, Tuesdays, or by calling 344-711, Extension 346 for more detailed information.

49 new voters sign registration

STROUDSBURG — Forty-nine new voters have registered with the Monroe County Board of Elections as of late Friday afternoon according to Mrs. Lovell Banks, registrar.

A breakdown shows 31 Republicans and 18 new Democrats registered.

The first drive-in moving picture theater opened in Camden, N.J., in 1933.

television time, (10 p.m. E.S.T.) CBS will present the National Smoking Test in cooperation with the American Cancer Society.

"This should be one of the most significant television programs on cigarette smoking presented to date by a national network. It is an experiment with a technique for involving listening cigarette smokers in a process of self-evaluation of why they smoke, and what may be the best techniques to give up smoking," said Dr. Harold The American Cancer Society.

Local unit
Antoinette L. Hoffman, executive director of Monroe county unit, has already notified all area junior and senior high school principals, and the Tobyhanna Army Depot, to encourage participation. All schools will cooperate and have agreed to make it a compulsory project for the students, says Mrs. Hoffman.

She emphasized that the program's purpose is to influence the young people early enough not to start smoking before they are influenced by habit and promotional smoking advertising.

The test, an audience participation self-inventory, will be based on facts about cigarette smoking, what the viewer knows about cigarette smoking, and will question the smoker's profile.

It will be based on the "Insight Development Questionnaire" developed by Dr. Daniel Horn for the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health.

Mrs. Hoffman has planned to distribute more than 12,000 test forms and hopes that after their return, interpretation of the findings can be made to support a local survey of the smoking

Shoe firm to construct new plant

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP)—After four profitable years, the Endicott-Johnson Corp., a shoe company that underwent a financial crisis in 1960, now plans to construct a modern shoe plant near its headquarters in this Southern Tier village.

In 1960, the company suffered financial losses and cut off its common stock dividends. The plant, to cost more than $1 million, will be on a 52-acre site just west of here—the company's first new factory in this area in 20 years.

Russell Kennedy, group vice president in charge of the project, said in making the announcement Friday that construction would begin this spring and "we expect to be moving in and operating by late fall of this year."

The company has been phasing out some of its older plants, and about 500 employees from the older plants will be transferred to the new plant to make men's shoes.

Although the company's 1967 profit has not been announced, it was reported that it would not be enough to warrant restoration of the stock dividends.

In a letter dated Jan. 5 to the borough council, he noted that when he was elected to the General Assembly he had agreed to continue as solicitor on a temporary basis.

Since he cannot attend meetings during legislative sessions, Ruggiero stated he felt it was not fair to continue as solicitor.

Ruggiero has served as legal advisor to the borough the past 10 years. He took office as state representative from the 137th District a year ago this month.

Disabled widows gain under social security

EASTON — Monthly cash benefits are made available to disabled widows of workers who were insured under social security as early as age 50 under the Amendments to the Social Security law according to Edward F. Sullivan, District Manager for the Social Security Administration.

The new legislation also increases social security payments for all beneficiaries by

At least 13 per cent. Special payments made to people age 72 and older will also be increased to $40 a month for individuals and to $60 a month for couples. Sullivan said that the increase will first appear in the social security checks that will be paid early in March. Beneficiaries do not have to do anything to get the increase and are asked not to contact the social security office about the amount.

Under the old law widows age

50 or over could receive monthly cash payments on the social security account of a husband who died fully insured. The new legislation reduces the age retirement to 50 for widows who are severely disabled. The first month for which payments can be made to disabled widows is February.

Cy Barrett Says

Starlet with an aim

DEAR CY: I am a movie starlet who helps support her mother. She is actually healthy, but needs drugs to stay that way. What I object to is paying a higher price for brand name drugs when they would cost less if described by popular names. Can't the nation's lawmakers force prices into being the same for branded drugs products and those which can be easily described by anyone who knows what to ask for?

MISS HOLLY: DEAR MISS HOLLY: Congress is investigating the cost paradox you cite, but the problem is complex. The danger over drug prices stems from the situation that pharmaceutical manufacturers research and develop drugs while others do not. The innovators groan when citing a comment by Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, president of the Warner-Lambert Research Institute and former U.S. surgeon general.

Dr. Scheele states, "The average industry expenditure to develop a successful single drug in the common domain, and entity is seven million dollars." Obviously drug producers which manufacture drugs in the common domain and which are easily described, have lower overhead. On the other hand, it can be said they don't contribute greatly to public health advances, although they do render day-to-day medical aid.

This is the doctrine that a drug should be sold at about the same price whether it be a brand name or available under any other accepted description. The drug business is a high risk industry which seems to have done well indeed by ailing Americans. In the words of Mr. Stetler, "All available price indices show drug prices are declining while other prices rise."

It is also claimed the disparity in prices for branded and generic drugs is not so great as ballyhooed. Anyway, if a movie starlet had popularity of an attack on the drug industry, she would be the star box office attraction. That is, completely without talent.

DEAR CY: My husband has no artistic sense whatsoever. His company sent him to India on a business trip, and he was taken on a tour of the Taj Mahal by Indian businessmen. Know what my husband thought this exquisite and greatest example of Indian Moslem architecture looked like?

MRS. BROWN: DEAR MRS. BROWN: Like most every other businessman visiting the Taj Mahal your husband probably thought it was the home office of a life insurance company.

Shoe firm to construct new plant

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP)—After four profitable years, the Endicott-Johnson Corp., a shoe company that underwent a financial crisis in 1960, now plans to construct a modern shoe plant near its headquarters in this Southern Tier village.

In 1960, the company suffered financial losses and cut off its common stock dividends.

The plant, to cost more than $1 million, will be on a 52-acre site just west of here—the company's first new factory in this area in 20 years.

O. Russell Kennedy, group vice president in charge of the project, said in making the announcement Friday that construction would begin this spring and "we expect to be moving in and operating by late fall of this year."

The company has been phasing out some of its older plants, and about 500 employees from the older plants will be transferred to the new plant to make men's shoes.

Although the company's 1967 profit has not been announced, it was reported that it would not be enough to warrant restoration of the stock dividends.

Ruggiero resigns as solicitor

BANGOR — State Rep. Philip S. Ruggiero has submitted his resignation as Roseto Borough solicitor.

In a letter dated Jan. 5 to the borough council, he noted that when he was elected to the General Assembly he had agreed to continue as solicitor on a temporary basis.

Since he cannot attend meetings during legislative sessions, Ruggiero stated he felt it was not fair to continue as solicitor.

Ruggiero has served as legal advisor to the borough the past 10 years. He took office as state representative from the 137th District a year ago this month.

Disabled widows gain under social security

EASTON — Monthly cash benefits are made available to disabled widows of workers who were insured under social security as early as age 50 under the Amendments to the Social Security law according to Edward F. Sullivan, District Manager for the Social Security Administration.

The new legislation also increases social security payments for all beneficiaries by

At least 13 per cent. Special payments made to people age 72 and older will also be increased to $40 a month for individuals and to $60 a month for couples. Sullivan said that the increase will first appear in the social security checks that will be paid early in March. Beneficiaries do not have to do anything to get the increase and are asked not to contact the social security office about the amount.

Under the old law widows age

60 or over could receive monthly cash payments on the social security account of a husband who died fully insured. The new legislation reduces the age retirement to 50 for widows who are severely disabled. The first month for which payments can be made to disabled widows is February.

Cy Barrett Says

Starlet with an aim

DEAR CY:

I am a movie starlet who helps support her mother. She is actually healthy, but needs drugs to stay that way. What I object to is paying a higher price for brand name drugs when they would cost less if described by popular names. Can't the nation's lawmakers force prices into being the same for branded drugs products and those which can be easily described by anyone who knows what to ask for?

MISS HOLLY

DEAR MISS HOLLY: Congress is investigating the cost paradox you cite, but the problem is complex. The dither over drug prices stems from the situation that pharmaceutical manufacturers research and develop drugs while others do not. The innovators groan when citing a comment by Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, president of the Warner-Lambert Research institute and former U.S. surgeon general.

Dr. Scheele states, "The average industry expenditure to develop a successful single drug in the common domain, and entity is seven million dollars." Obviously drug producers which manufacture drugs in the common domain and which are easily described, have lower overhead. On the other hand, it can be said they don't contribute greatly to public health advances, although they do render day-to-day medical aid.

This is the doctrine that a drug should be sold at about the same price whether it be a brand name or available under any other accepted description. The drug business is a high risk industry which seems to have done well indeed by ailing Americans. In the words of Mr. Stetler, "All available price indices show drug prices are declining while other prices rise."

It is also claimed the disparity in prices for branded and generic drugs is not so great as ballyhooed. Anyway, if a movie starlet had popularity of an attack on the drug industry, she would be the star box office attraction. That is, completely without talent.

CY

DEAR CY: My husband has no artistic sense whatsoever. His company sent him to India on a business trip, and he was taken on a tour of the Taj Mahal by Indian businessmen. Know what my husband thought this exquisite and greatest example of Indian Moslem architecture looked like?

MRS. BROWN

DEAR MRS. BROWN: Like most every other businessman visiting the Taj Mahal your husband probably thought it was the home office of a life insurance company.
